MARY McELROY TAKES OWN LIFE WITH PISTOL SHOT

Daughter of Late 'Boss' in Kansas City Leaves Note Declaring Her Ex-Kidnapers' Understanding.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Brunet Mary McElroy killed herself today, after seven tragic years of brooding over what she termed the unjust punishment of the men who kidnaped her in 1933.

Police said she had taken her own life. They found a note penned in ink in the handwriting of the slender 32-year-old daughter of the late H. F. McElroy, stormy Pendergast political machine leader, who was ousted as city manager last spring.

The note read:
"My four kidnapers are probably the only people on earth who don't consider me an utter fool.
"You have your death penalty now—so—please—give them a chance."

It was signed "Mary McElroy." While no official comment was forthcoming, the note was interpreted in some quarters as referring to her known attitude of sympathy toward the fate of the four men who abducted her.

No FBI Comment.
Dwight Brantley, head of the Kansas City office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said he had "no comment" when he was asked about reports that Miss McElroy recently had undergone renewed questions by FBI agents about the kidnaping.

Clarence Stevens, one of the men sought by federal agents as a member of the McElroy kidnaping gang, still is at large.
Two of the other three kidnapers, Walter and George McGee, brothers, are serving life sentences in the Missouri penitentiary. A third member of the gang, Clarence Click, who lived on the farm where she was held prisoner, was released in 1938 after serving an eight-year sentence.

Police found a small caliber pistol, identified by Henry F. McElroy Jr. as his sister's, on the floor near the divan in the sunroom where Miss McElroy's maid, Mrs. Inez Strange, discovered her mistress' body shortly after 9 o'clock this morning.

Powder Burns.
A police examination disclosed powder burns on the dead girl's right hand. The right side of her face also was burned by powder, indicating, officers said, the gun had been held close to her head when the fatal shot was fired.

The bullet penetrated her head just forward of, and near the top of her right ear. Police made paraffin tests, which they said showed Miss McElroy's right hand had held and fired the death weapon.

Her body was clad in a gray lounging suit, slacks, and jacket. A pair of dark glasses covered her eyes.

Her death was the tragic end of seven harrowing years, beginning with her kidnaping in 1933. Then followed the trial of three of her four abductors; her successful appeal to the Governor to commute

Atlanta Debs Have 'Oomph,' Even in Dress of the Sixties

Atlanta debutantes will outshine Boston's professional models or debutantes in evening gowns, bathing suits or sarongs, Thomas B. Paine, leader of Atlanta society for more than half a century, declared yesterday after the Boston models claimed that their girls were more beautiful than any debutantes. Here's lovely Sara Smith, left, Atlanta debutante, dressed in a costume of the War Between the States period, to prove Mr. Paine's claim. And if Miss Smith didn't convince the Boston debs, then here is Miss Mary McGaughey, also dressed in the style of the sixties. Mr. Paine would like to see any professional model look more lovely than these girls in the dresses Grandmother wore—or any other kind. The debutantes themselves said—well, they'd just let Mr. Paine defend them.

W. O. ALSTON DIES; BUSINESS LEADER

Real Estate Figure Succumbs to Pneumonia at 52; Funeral Tomorrow.

William Ott Alston, 52, brother of the late Robert C. Alston and a leading figure in Atlanta's business circles for many years, died last night at his home, 1180 Bell Air drive, N. W.

Although he had been in bad health for several months his condition had not been considered critical until a few days ago when he contracted pneumonia.

Native of Alabama.
A native of Clayton, Ala., he was a son of the late Judge and Mrs. August H. Alston and had made his home here since 1908. When he first moved to Atlanta he was connected with the Atlantic Steel Company, but 30 years ago he entered the real estate and loan business.

He was president of the Cherokee Savings Company and for many years was on the board of stewards of the First Methodist church. He was a Mason and a Shriner.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Margaret Wright, the daughter of Mrs. Fannie B. Wright, who made her home with the Alstons for many years. Mrs. Wright is the widow of J. O. Wright and a daughter of the late Maxwell R. Berry, a pioneer Atlanta resident.

Services Tomorrow.
Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Lawrence H. Lee, of Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. Louise Alston Adams, of Montgomery, and Mrs. Derrell J. Grubbs, of Clayton; two brothers, Edward O. Alston, of Denver, Col., and Philip H. Alston, of Atlanta; two daughters, Miss Frances Alston, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Paul Resoule, of Orleans, France; a grandson, John Paul Resoule, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at Spring Hill by Dr. Edward G. Mackay, the time to be announced later.

SIMPLE RITES FOR BORAH.
BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 21.—(AP)—State funeral services at Boise for William E. Borah will be simple. The Rev. Frank A. Rhea, of St. Michael's Episcopal cathedral in Boise, will be the only speaker in the marble-walled statehouse rotunda at 3 p. m. Thursday.

Atlanta Girls More Lovely Than Boston's, Paine Says

Peachtree Beauties Could Win 'Glamour Battle' With Beantown's Debutantes, or Models, Social Leader Declares; Indorsing North-South 'Oomph' Tourney.

By BETTY MATHIS.
Boston professional models representing the activity of society girls posing as photographic and clothing models have challenged debutantes to a "battle of glamour." They say they can outshine the debs whether it be in evening gowns, bathing suits or sarongs.

That may be true in Boston, but according to Thomas B. Paine, leader of Atlanta society for more than half a century, the models will have a real battle on their hands if they want to compete with Atlanta society girls.

"Atlanta debutantes are the prettiest girls in the world. If the Boston models say that debs in their town are not attractive, they

King Winter, who already has outstayed his welcome in Atlanta, is scheduled to begin packing today.

The weatherman came out from his warm hideout long enough yesterday to say skies will be fair and temperatures slightly warmer today, thus helping escort the unwelcome visitor out of town.

A low of 15 degrees is forecast for this morning, after which the mercury will start a slow movement upward.

All of which is good news for thousands of Atlantans who have been shivering under sub-freezing temperatures.

Meanwhile Atlantans were encouraged by a bright Sunday which saw the mercury rise from a low of 15 degrees at 7 a. m. to 35 degrees during the afternoon.

PASTORS DEMAND CHURCH ACT IN WAR

Christians Cannot Stay Neutral or Evade Responsibility, They Say.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Thirty-three Protestant clergymen and laymen declared tonight Christians could not remain neutral in the present international conflicts.

In a joint statement, they asserted Christians in neutral nations should not evade ethical issues raised by the wars abroad and that American churches were "under obligations to lead their nation to assume a responsible relationship" to these wars.

"To suggest that nothing of consequence is at stake in the success of Japanese, German and Russian designs on China, Czechoslovakia, Poland and the Baltic states, or in the successful resistance of these latter nations, is to be guilty of moral irresponsibility," the statement continued.

"A victory for the Allied powers or for China would not of itself assure the establishment of justice and peace, but the victory of Germany, Russia or Japan would inevitably preclude the justice, freedom of thought and worship, and international co-op-

HOMEBOUND NAZIS SEIZED BY BRITISH

21 Seamen Are Removed From Japanese Steamer by Unnamed Warship.

TOKYO, Jan. 21.—(AP)—A British warship halted the Japanese steamer Asama Maru with a warning shot across her bow Saturday and removed 21 German merchant seamen en route from San Francisco to Japan on their way to Germany, it was disclosed today.

Passengers aboard the Asama Maru, which left San Francisco January 6, said the Germans were being sent back to the deck by the Standard Oil Company when they were captured by the British.

Considering Protest.
Termining the incident "very disagreeable," a government official said today Japan was considering a formal protest to Great Britain against the halting of the steamship and the removal of the German seamen.

Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, said the government felt the case was "disagreeable" because the "search and arrests took place so near our shore."

Officials will decide tomorrow on their course, it was indicated.

The incident occurred within sight of the Chiba peninsula on Japan's east coast near Yokohama. Passengers said the British indicated that the captives would be interned at Hongkong. The captives included a captain and part of a group of 40 men who formerly served on Standard Oil tankers in South American waters and were being sent home at the company's expense because of the war.

Seventeen of the German group were ignored by the British boarding party, apparently because they were unskilled seamen or because some were over 45 years of age.

Two others escaped by hiding, one in a false smokestack and the other in a barrel.

Eleven other Germans, most of them merchants, also were not molested by the British.

The incident, first verified halting of a ship in the Japanese area, was confirmed by a British embassy statement which said that the "removing of the German merchant officers and seamen from neutral vessels on the high seas was fully in accordance with international law."

The embassy said the captives

HUGE NAVAL BASE, RUSSIAN AIRFIELDS BOMBED BY FINNS

Finnish Planes Launch Raids on Estonia; 'Heavy Casualties' Suffered by Reds on Land.

By WADE WERNER.

HELSINKI, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Finnish army announced today the repulse of Soviet Russian attacks on the Karelian Isthmus with "heavy casualties" suffered by the invaders.

At the same time, a Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Helsinki to London said tonight that Finnish warplanes had bombed the big Russian naval base at Kronstadt in the Gulf of Finland.

Reuters said the Finns also had raided the Estonian port of Baltiski, where a Russian air base was established recently under the terms of a treaty between the two nations.

Bomb Air Bases.
(The Finnish radio) announced that Finnish warplanes had bombed Soviet air bases at other points along the Estonian Baltic coast, the United Press said tonight.

(The radio announcement, first formal admission of Finnish air attacks on Estonian territory across the Gulf of Finland, said the raids were carried out Saturday after definite information that the hundreds of Soviet planes raiding southern Finland were taking off from Estonian bases. The radio said that all the Finnish planes returned safely to their home bases, according to the United Press.)

The Finnish army also reported the capture of "a few enemy strong points" in the lower part of the eastern front while private advices from above the Arctic circle said the Russian forces which had been retreating after cutting nearly halfway across Finland had braced 50 miles from the border against the pursuing Finns.

Cloudy Skies.
As cloudy skies brought relief to the Finns today from the almost daily pounding by Russian bombers, the high command said two civilians were killed and 22 others in yesterday's raids and it charged a hospital marked with Red Cross emblems was bombed.

It said that from "enemy airmen who fell into our hands yesterday it is clear that air bases situated in Estonia are being used at least for air raids on southwest Finland."

Russia gained the right to establish bases in Estonia as well as

Nazis Warn Neutrals After Churchill Talk

BERLIN, Monday, Jan. 22.—(UP)—The mouthpiece of the German foreign office today cautioned Europe's neutrals to turn a deaf ear to Saturday's radio speech by Winston Churchill, British first lord of the admiralty, who suggested that they join the Allies lest they become victims of both Germany and Soviet Russia.

An authorized spokesman said that Churchill's speech was an "admission" that Great Britain aims to spread the war over all of Europe.

"The speech was very significant because it is the first open appeal to neutrals to support Britain in this war," he said.

The Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, semi-official organ of the foreign office, said that Britain's efforts to force other countries to fight for her are becoming increasingly apparent and pointed to what it called a maze of false rumors spread by the British and French, including one that Germany would support Russia in the war in Finland.

"This whole phantom of lies has been invented," the foreign office organ said, "in order to create fear of Germany in all directions."

Referring to Churchill, the organ said:

"Everyone knows that Germany

COUGHLIN DEFENDS CHRISTIAN FRONT

Calls Himself 'Friend of the Accused' 17 Men; Urges Fight on Reds.

DETROIT, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, attacking what he called the attitude of the "prejudiced press," named himself today "a friend of the accused" in the revolution-conspiracy charges against 17 New Yorkers and he ridiculed certain aspects of the case.

"Insofar as the public press—not the Department of Justice—has placed the Christian front on trial, insinuating that it is a radical movement and asserting that it is composed entirely of crackpots, I take my stand beside the Christian Fronters," he said.

Father Coughlin, devoting his regular Sunday broadcast to a discussion of federal charges naming the 17 as conspirators for revolt and overthrow of the government, charged that a campaign had been launched to "vilify both the name and principles" of the Christian Front. The 17 were alleged members.

"... I do not belong to any unit of the Christian Front; nevertheless, I am a Christian Front member."

War Attitude Similar In Finland, Denmark

Swede Sees All Scandinavia 'Unsafe' If the Russians Win.

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE JR., United Press Staff Correspondent. COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Over a couple of beers and a short or two of akavi against the cold outside, Goesta Lundquist and I talked over the Finnish war this afternoon in a bright, warm restaurant on the edge of Copenhagen's Rådhus Pladsen.

Lundquist, a Swede who lives here, is like thousands of other Scandinavians who would prefer the war in Finland to a peaceful Sunday schnappa at home.

The square outside was full of promenaders trying to jam their way into the movie palaces which are always sold out hours in advance on Sunday. Just beyond the square was one theater show-

900 ARE FORCED INTO LIFEBOATS TO ESCAPE FLAMES

Paul Van Zeeland, Former Belgian Premier, Reported Aboard; Storm Scatters Open Boats.

TOULON, France, Jan. 22.

(Monday)—(AP)—Wild seas added to difficulties of rescue ships early today searching for survivors of the 11,669-ton Italian liner Orazio which burned in the western Mediterranean and whose 900 passengers and crew were reported to include Paul Van Zeeland, former premier of Belgium.

(Italian line officials in Genoa said all passengers and crew had been taken off the Orazio safely by the 23,255-ton Italian liner Conte 'Blancamano'.)

Grope Cautiously.

Five lifeboats of survivors had been reported saved, but storm and darkness caused the rescue ships to grope cautiously in the western Mediterranean, where the Orazio burned 100 miles off Barcelona.

The rough waves tossed and scattered over a wide area the lifeboats into which the 600 passengers and 300 crewmen were forced to escape when the Orazio's master finally abandoned an all-day fight against flames which swept the decks, end to end.

The greatest care was necessary to avoid running down the small boats drifting aimlessly in the sea.

Return Awaited.
At Marseille, the return of two French destroyers which sped to the scene when the Orazio broadcast an SOS yesterday was awaited eagerly.

They picked up two of the lifeboats. Other ships were reported to have picked up three more. But the number of occupants of the boats was not known here, and only the scantiest information could be obtained.

Cause of the fire, which forced the hundreds of passengers and crew to the open boats was not known.

Six hundred passengers were reported aboard the liner, in addition to a crew of 300, when the liner sent her first message Sunday morning saying she was afire 100 miles off Barcelona.

Taking to Boats.
After the crew and passengers had made an apparently desperate but futile effort to check the flames all afternoon, the liner's master sent an SOS at 6 p. m. Sunday (12 o'clock noon, Atlanta time), saying:

"Taking to the boats—all ships approaching in darkness beware."

The liner left Genoa Saturday en route to Valparaiso, Chile. Aboard were many South Americans and Italians, including an Italian aeronautical mission en route to Bolivia.

Turns Off Course.
An Italian steamer turned off its course to join the two French destroyers in answering the Orazio's call.

Other vessels also were reported to have gone to her aid, but their number and identification were not available at once.

The two destroyers were ordered back after reporting picking up

RAIL, TAXI HEADS TO SEEK ACCORD ON CAB SERVICE

Early Talk Is Scheduled on Method of Carrying Passengers To, From Atlanta's Train Depots.

Date for a conference on the controversy between the railroads and the taxicab company will be set as soon as a mutually agreeable time can be arranged. A. L. Belle Isle, cab company president, said yesterday.

Railroad passenger agents have complained about what they termed "inadequate service," and J. A. Higgins, spokesman for the group, stated yesterday they were "perfectly willing" to discuss the situation and see if a solution to the problem can be worked out.

"If Mr. Belle Isle has any suggestions to offer, we naturally will be more than willing to listen to them," Higgins said. "I'm sure we will be able to arrange a meeting within the next few days, and I'm highly hopeful that something can be done about the situation."

"I have written each one of the railroads," Belle Isle said, "inviting them to meet with me at their earliest convenience. I've already received several replies indicating their willingness to talk it over. We will set a date as soon as I've heard from the others."

the death sentence of one of them; the ousting of her father as city manager in the breakdown of the Pendergast machine last spring and finally her father's death last summer.

In Good Spirits.

Both her maid and H. F. McElroy Jr., her brother, told police she had appeared in good spirits last night and yesterday afternoon. Miss McElroy was kidnapped from her bath May 27, 1933, chained to the basement wall of a farmhouse near Shawnee, Kan., and released after being held prisoner 29 hours. Her father paid $30,000 ransom for her release.

Walter McGee was given a death sentence, but it was commuted to life by Guy B. Park, then Governor. Miss McElroy had made a personal appeal for commutation after other legal avenues of saving McGee from the gallows had been closed.

Father Questioned.

During Walter McGee's trial Miss McElroy's father was asked by a defense attorney: "But your daughter was not harmed?"

"Yes," McElroy replied, "my daughter has been injured—to the extent that I fear she never will get over it."

Since the kidnapping Miss McElroy has suffered several nervous breakdowns.

During one of them she disappeared from her home and 11 hours later was found at Normal, Illinois.

Returned to Kansas City, she said she held no "personal hard feelings" against her kidnapers, "and I am sure they do not hold hard feelings against me."

Had Nightmares.

"That's what makes the situation the worst," she said. "I have nightmares about those men and the fates they brought on themselves. I was part of the drama that fixed their destiny. I cannot forget them. I have visited them in prison. Something drives me to do this. I cannot let them go."

In a frank and vivid interview four years ago, Miss McElroy said her foremost ambition was to make "normal, acceptable citizens" of her abductors. She took them gifts on frequent visits to prison at Jefferson City until her father quit the city hall. From last spring until his death she had devoted all her attention to him.

Miss McElroy said the dreadful memory of 30 harrowing hours she was chained to a basement wall in a small Kansas house filled her mind. In its place was an "intense interest in the well-being" of the kidnapers.

Claims Friendship.

"Now I am their friend and I'm sure they are mine."

"George—that's the little one—is having a high school course. (She sent him gifts, books and arranged for an instructor from the correspondence school to visit him.)

"Walter wouldn't be interested in school work. He's more like this—Miss McElroy displayed a pair of gloves and a handkerchief the convict had crocheted for her.

FORMER ABDUCTORS MOURN GIRL'S DEATH

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 21.—(P)—Two brothers, kidnapers of Mary McElroy, serving life terms in the state penitentiary, tonight mourned their one-time victim's suicide as that of "a sister."

They are Walter McGee, now 34, who abducted the late Kansas City manager's daughter from her home and held her for ransom, and George McGee, now 29.

Their lips quivered when they spoke of Miss McElroy as "the best friend we ever had."

FARLEY HERE TODAY TO SEE J. R. BOYD

Post Office Official Will Honor Retired Mail Superintendent.

Genial Jim Farley, boss of Uncle Sam's vast post office empire and maker of a president, will pay a brief visit to Atlanta this afternoon for the sole purpose of honoring a veteran employee—James R. Boyd—who recently retired as superintendent of the Fourth Division, railway mail service, after 44 years.

Farley is scheduled to arrive at 3:30 o'clock at the Terminal Station. He will be accompanied by Ambrose O'Connell, second assistant postmaster general. In the welcoming party will be Atlanta's Postmaster Lon Livingston and other local post office officials.

Farley will honor Boyd at a small gathering in the Railway Mail Service headquarters, room M-202, New Post Office building. He will present Boyd a gift from fellow employees.

At 4:30 o'clock the two postal officials will be guests of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Railway Mail Association at the Ansley hotel, after which they will board a 6 o'clock train for Pensacola, Fla., where Farley is to dedicate a new post office building.

M'NUTT AND GARNER VIE FOR OHIO VOTE

Security Head Would Battle Texan, But Leaves Roosevelt Clear Field.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(UP)—A sharp fight between Paul V. McNutt and Vice President John N. Garner for Ohio's 52 delegates to the Democratic national convention, began taking shape tonight, although President Roosevelt has a tacit promise of the delegation's support.

McNutt's managers indicated that if Garner's name is entered in Ohio's presidential preference primary this spring, McNutt's name will be entered, although the federal security administrator has announced that he will not be a third tier.

Garner strategists implied last week they would seek a delegation pledged to the Texan, inasmuch as the Buckeye state's "favorite son" candidate, Senator Victor Donahey, has announced he will run for re-election to the senate.

Atlanta Pastors Urge Help For Needy Finnish Civilians

Congregation Told Finland's Cause Strikes Straight to the Heart of Christianity; Nation Held Battling for Religious and Governmental Freedom.

Congregations of Atlanta churches of all denominations yesterday heard appeals from their pastors for the fund to relieve suffering among the civilian population of Finland, and were told the little nation's fight was for freedom in religion as well as freedom in government.

Dr. John Moore Walker, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, said yesterday that the interest of all right-thinking humanity was focused in the plight of Finland. "Their interests are our interests," he said, "and the world is fortunate that the Finnish people are so successfully directing attention to the fact that freedom, religion and democracy are still worth fighting for—in a day when opportunities to battle for principle."

"The cause of the suffering people of Finland goes right to the heart of Christianity," said Dr. John L. Yost, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. "Relief of the oppressed is ever an obligation of our people and in this case the magnificent ideals involved make it doubly so."

Rabbi Harry H. Epstein, of Congregation Ahavath Achim, declared that his members were expressing their sympathy with the plight of the Finns in generous fashion and urged on them a continuance of this devotion to relief. "Even if it calls for sacrifice," he added, "all of us should do our part."

Their Fight—Our Fight. "The Finns stand for the same things we stand for," said Dr. Herman L. Turner, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian church, "and consequently their fight is our fight. We can't go to war for them or for anyone else—but we can dig down and make our willing contributions to relieve suffering among the women, children and aged who have been left behind."

Headquarters of the Finnish Relief Fund in Georgia are at the Henry Grady hotel, under the direction of Ryburn G. Clay, treasurer and co-chairman of the fund and Preston S. Arkwright, co-chairman. Walter H. Rich is chairman for the city of Atlanta.

delinquent negro girls was regarded as "a very definite need," but explained the 1937 legislature had made only a provisional appropriation for operating the plant, contingent on the department obtaining funds not appropriated for other purposes. He estimated approximately $25,000 a year would be required to operate the institution "on a small scale," to care for "from 60 to 75 girls."

Kennedy said delinquent negro girls now are usually held in jail until arrangements are made to parole them with relatives.

The lack of facilities for delinquent negro girls was criticized by the September (1939) grand jury of DeKalb county as an "astounding situation," and a demand made "that something be done as promptly as possible."

Charging the state had kept the gift "a dark secret from the public," the commission on inter-racial co-operation estimated an expenditure of $10,000 would be sufficient to put the plant in operation.

RESERVE OFFICERS TO FETE PRESIDENT

Colonel Edward S. Bres Here Today for Parley With Smith.

Colonel Edward S. Bres, of New Orleans, national president of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, will be in Atlanta today for a conference with Colonel E. W. Smith, of Atlanta, national chairman of the organization's policy committee.

Atlanta Airport Being Considered For 'Blind' Landing Experiments

10 Flying Fields Will Be Selected For Location of Equipment To Study Methods of Bringing Planes Down in Bad Weather.

Experiments looking toward a solution of aviation's problem No. 1—perfect landings in "zero-zero" weather—may soon be started at Candler field.

Clinton M. Hester, administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, announced yesterday in Washington that new experimental equipment for "blind" landings would be set up in the near future at 10 of the country's principal air terminals.

25 Being Considered.

The 10 are to be selected from a list of 25 cities—including Atlanta—and while there has been no definite announcement as yet it is considered highly probable that Candler field will be one of those chosen.

J. H. Gray, the municipal airport manager, said last night he had heard the question discussed for some time but had no idea just how or when it would be worked out. He feels reasonably sure, however, that if 10 sets of new equipment are to be installed, one of them will be at Candler.

"Excellent Idea." "If size and importance are to be considered they can't very well leave us out," he said, "and I really think it would be an excellent idea. As a matter of fact, we have excellent flying weather the great majority of the time but anything which would make it possible for us to improve on our service would be more than welcome."

Just what type of equipment is being considered Gray does not know. For that matter there may be several different types. But he is designed to enable a pilot to bring a plane safely to earth even though the landing field is completely obscured.

PUERTO RICAN ILLS ARE TOLD TO F. D. R.

Leahy Says Island's Defense Measures Endangered Unless Jobless Get Relief.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, Governor of Puerto Rico and former chief of naval operations, told President Roosevelt today that huge national defense preparations at the island possession will be endangered unless Congress adopts measures to improve Puerto Rican economic conditions.

At a luncheon meeting with the President, Leahy informed him that Puerto Rico, which is being transformed into a "Gibraltar" of the Caribbean, must get liberal federal aid for its unemployed who number 300,000 out of the total population of 1,800,000.

Leahy, named to the Puerto Rican post last summer, has given his personal attention to the defense preparations which include creation of a huge army airbase and a naval submarine and sea base, at a cost of approximately $100,000,000.

CHARLES H. WOODBURY, NOTED PAINTER, DIES

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—(P)—Charles Herbert Woodbury, 75, internationally known marine painter and teacher, died unexpectedly today. Called the "discoverer" of the Ogunquit, Maine, art colony, Woodbury won acclaim for his expressions of the rugged New England shore and the sea in all its moods.

Wrecking a Vital Program

The house of representatives has axed from the appropriations bill $75,000,000 assigned in the budget to the ship construction program of the Maritime Commission. The sum allotted for new ship construction now stands at $25,000,000, while authorizations of contracts totaling $150,000,000 were eliminated on a point of order. Thus does congress begin the wrecking of a program which is vital in the extreme to the United States, at a time when none can tell what the morrow will bring.

The merchant marine history of the United States is full of the lessons which should impress upon congress the need for a long-range program of construction, both from the viewpoint of world trade needs and national defense, to which last an adequate, efficient merchant marine is almost as vital as the battle line.

The merchant marine today, with the exception of the few new ships constructed under the Maritime Commission's program, is woefully weak. It is old, with a vast majority of the vessels either over-age or rapidly nearing that point. There are so few crack passenger liners that foreign flag vessels almost dominated trans-Atlantic trade or cruise trade. It is slow, a factor which in time of war would severely hamper the fleet, both for convoy purposes and for the necessary auxiliaries away from major bases. The new ships are designed to afford passenger comfort, fast yet economical freight passage, and to operate with the fleet at speeds required for naval purposes.

So whether the ultimate destiny of the ships is war or peace, they are badly needed, a seeming paradox at a time when American vessels have been withdrawn from war zones and American seamen are beached by the cessation of this major traffic. For America must look ahead. If the European war lasts three years, or four years, America's merchant fleet will deteriorate just that much more and there will be no replacements coming along to fill the needs which then will be enormous. If by any chance America should become involved, a possibility which none can overlook, then the history of the World War will be repeated, when wooden heads built wooden ships and blockheads built concrete ships, which, thank God, were quickly consigned to the oblivion they deserved; when interned enemy vessels became the major troopships and one even was used to carry the President of the United States to the Versailles peace conference.

America's destiny lies on the oceans almost as much as does that of Great Britain. That is why the United States maintains a battle fleet which theoretically is equal to that of England's. But why maintain a battle fleet to insure the free passage of the oceans without a merchant fleet able to operate on the oceans the navy must keep free? National defense does not lie alone in the battlewagons and the cruisers and the destroyers, for the life blood of these ships is the auxiliaries they require in time of war.

America needs these new ships for peacetime commerce and for the safety of the nation in time of war. It is to be hoped the senate will act with greater wisdom and restore the funds of the ship construction program, and that the house will accept the revision. The times demand that no chances be taken to weaken the national security, which this reduction does.

Hi-Y in Georgia

It was in late December, 1919, at Fort Valley that the first Hi-Y club in Georgia was organized. Founders of this club were H. E. Montague, former Boys' Work secretary of the State Council of Y. M. C. A.'s of Georgia, and Ralph Newton, now superintendent of the Waycross city schools.

On January 26, next Friday, a supper, marking this twentieth anniversary, will be held in Rich's tea room. The founders of that first club will be present while past and present Hi-Y members and leaders are being invited.

The anniversary supper will be a feature of the annual convention of Y. M. C. A.'s of Georgia, which will be held in Atlanta on that day. Hi-Y clubs are, for the sake of the uninitiated, Y. M. C. A. organizations in high schools. There are today 259 such clubs in 149 schools in 60 counties of Georgia. There are 305 schools in 99 counties without Hi-Y clubs, but which are considered organizationally.

The Y. M. C. A. in Georgia shows a most remarkable record of increasing membership, better service, greater activity and expanding influence. It is one of the finest state-wide assets in the building of good citizenship during youth. In no feature of its work has it shown greater vitality than in the Hi-Y work.

The Y. M. C. A. has, for many years, been rather taken for granted as a normal unit in city life. For this very reason it has, perhaps, been necessary for leaders in the movement to expend greater energy. Their efforts, however, have shown marvelous results, in Georgia at least. The importance of the Hi-Y department to the program as a whole lies chiefly in the fact that it carries the Y work into the smaller communities and rural centers. The stated purpose of these clubs of young people is "to create, maintain and extend throughout school and community high standards of Christian living."

The state-wide influence of the Y. M. C. A. in Georgia and its remarkable growth in effectiveness is chiefly due to the co-ordination of effort made possible through the State Council of the Y. M. C. A., with headquarters in Atlanta.

The program for next Friday is one of importance to all who hope for a better Georgia in the future and, as such, should receive sympathetic interest from all Georgia citizens.

To Destroy Education

That the Nazi government in Germany is deliberately seeking to close all avenues of higher education to the youth of Czechoslovakia, victim of German duplicity and military blitzkrieg of more than a year ago, is made plain by recent reliable reports from that unhappy country.

Almost all institutions of higher learning in the former Czech territory have been closed for a minimum of three years. To the present student generation, this means quite effective refusal of opportunity for education. Also, week by week, more and more Czech high schools and grammar schools are being forcibly closed down. University professors and high school teachers are being arrested, daily. A few schools have been converted into German schools, where Nazi interpreted German history is the only history taught.

Small details of the execution of students in Prague on the night of November 17 were permitted to reach the outer world at the time. Now, however, fuller reports, well authenticated, reveal some of the utter horror of the Gestapo "purging."

The number arrested was nearly 8,000, university and high school students, many of them girls in their teens. They were taken from their homes and dormitories by Gestapo agents in the early hours of the morning. No charges were made, there was no pretense at trials. They were simply seized, tied together in groups of three, loaded on trucks and taken to barracks outside Prague. Many of them were only their nightclothes—no time was permitted to get warmer garments. The night was cold and, it is believed by design, sprays of cold water were permitted to play over many of the crowded youngsters, thus increasing their misery. One eyewitness writes, "the girls were horribly misused."

The next morning, without explanation, 124 of the young prisoners were arbitrarily sorted out and, before the eyes of their horror-stricken companions, shot to death. Three of the 124 were girls. The German newspapers called this tragedy, "punishing the ring-leaders of unrest."

A nation thus treated, thus refused all means to education, can be doomed, unless rescued, only to be slaves and servants to their overlords.

It is a tragic fate for that proud nation which, under the aegis of the Treaty of Versailles, was born in Pittsburgh, U. S. A., two short decades ago.

DEFENSE TAX

(From The Newark Sunday Call.)

President Roosevelt favors a 10 per cent "super-tax" on the income tax to pay emergency national costs. A taxpayer would compute his levy in the usual way and then add 10 per cent to the total.

This would be the most equitable method of distributing the cost of expanding the nation's defense if the income tax rested on a broader base. Under the present law, however, only a few million Americans pay an income tax.

There would be wider interest in government expenditures and greater demand for economy if more folks were conscious of paying taxes. That's why the spenders want to keep the direct tax base narrow. The fewer who are hit by tax increases, the less the chance of retaliation at the polls. Everyone pays now, but comparatively few know they are paying, because most federal revenue comes from indirect taxes.

The national defense is a responsibility in which all Americans should share, in proportion to their ability to pay. If it is necessary to increase the burden on those already paying substantial taxes, then congress should also reconsider Senator La Follette's plan for reducing exemptions and putting many more millions of citizens on the income tax rolls.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

LABOR BACKS WHEELER WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler would appear to be labor's candidate for the presidency. The railroad brotherhoods are financing his campaign and may soon frankly endorse him. The AFL is friendly. And the CIO's John L. Lewis is making such loud, loving and public advances that his political flirtation with the senator amounts to an open scandal.

This is no more than Wheeler deserves, since he has one of the few 100 per cent labor records in congress. But the Washington equivalent of the rocking chair brigade is whispering that in the attentions of Lewis, at least, there is an ulterior motive. Lewis no doubt believes that Wheeler would make an excellent president, but Lewis is also angry with the current chief executive. The new trend of the labor relations board, the failure to pursue a more aggressive labor policy and a general inattentiveness to the CIO have caused Lewis, in fact, to feel a trifle jilted by the administration.

As rocking chair brigades well know, when a strong-minded, prideful man feels jilted, he is likely to try to assert himself by transferring his affections as rapidly as possible. The Lewis-Roosevelt alliance was never more than a marriage of convenience, since the parties to it dislike one another heartily. Thus, Lewis has been all the more ready to be off with the old love and on with the new. Meanwhile, Wheeler is benefiting. Lewis' complimentary gestures, while not entirely helpful in the present campaign, also aimed at conservative support, virtually assure the senator's reelection in Montana. The senatorship still means more to Wheeler than his presidential candidacy. He knows that his candidacy needs a Rooseveltian endorsement, and he is well aware (if others are not) that the White House remembers the court fight too well for any endorsement to be forthcoming.

SUMMER'S LAST ROSE The last of the New Deal's reforms is yet to come, although the President's current strategy may prevent him from pushing it in congress. In about a fortnight, the Securities and Exchange Commission will report on the investment trust business. The report will recommend that the trusts, with their huge aggregate capital of $5,000,000,000 and their working control of $25,000,000,000 worth of American industry, be subjected to the strictest type of government regulation.

SEC's Commissioner Robert Healy and David Schenker, who have ably conducted the SEC's exhaustive investigation of investment trusts are responsible for the report and recommendations, which will include proposals for regulation of investment counselors. A bill has been drawn, broadly patterned on the utilities holding company act, requiring registration of the trusts, simplification of their capital structures and openness in all transactions. The bill also outlaws self-dealing between the trusts and their officers and restricts pyramiding of assets. Unlike the holding company act, however, it leaves general discretion in managerial problems to the trusts' managements.

GLASS PAYS OFF In 1937, the President bet Virginia's Senator Carter Glass that he would live to at least three years more. Recently, the three-year period expired and Glass, still hale and hearty, marched down to the White House to pay off. The President called Glass the "Unreconstructed Rebel." While his former affection has worn a trifle thin, he still likes to joke with the magnificently peppery old man when Glass is in a mood to joke back.

"I'll bet you five dollars more that you'll live another three years," said the President, pointing out that his mother, now eighty-five, was just as active as ever.

Glass, who is only eighty-two, replied that he would not risk his money, since he felt so sure he thought it would be a poor bet. Since then he has been joyfully telling the story to his cronies, complaining ruefully that he looks so well no one will sympathize with him when he says he feels poorly. What is more, he was probably right to refuse the President's wager. After a long session of illness, he is completely recovered, back at his senate work, and as active as ever.

KENNEDY'S PROPHECY Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy confirms the prediction of his Washington opposite number, Lord Lothian, that Hitler will attack England with his full force in the spring. But Kennedy minimizes the danger of bombardment of cities, offensives along the Maginot line and the other expected phenomena of the full force attack. He is telling his cronies that Hitler will concentrate on trying to starve out the English by unrelenting air and submarine onslaughts on shipping convoys.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

A Letter From Africa.

Some of you may remember a reference, in this column, to that honeymoon couple, the Dahles (pronounced Dollies) from South Africa, who were table companions of Mr. and Mrs. Silhouettes on board the Aquitania, going east, to England last summer.

We have wondered, oftentimes, what happened to the Dahles after we said good-bye when landing at Southampton. You see, they had planned about a month in Scandinavia before returning to their home in South Africa. And, of course, the war broke long before that month was up and it was difficult enough, we found, getting home to the United States, let alone the long voyage to South Africa.

So, when a letter with strange stamps came to the house last week and the postmark showed it was from the home town of the Dahles, we were delighted and fruitfully interested.

They got home, all right, but when that letter was written their baggage was, in so far as they knew, still in Southampton. You see, they had planned to return to England after their Scandinavian trip and were booked to sail again from Southampton on a Union Castle boat for Cape Town. So they stored everything except a little hand baggage in the English post, intending to pick it up later. But they didn't go home that way.

Advised To Hurry.

Dahle's uncle, in Oslo, advised them to abandon the return trip to England and seek passage on some other boat sailing directly from Oslo for Cape Town. He told them the war was coming and they should hurry home. They took his advice and, after some difficulties, secured passage on a Swedish ship. They sailed from Oslo the day before war was declared.

Their vessel feared the journey through the North Sea and English channel, so they went around the north of Scotland and around Ireland. They heard of the sinking of the Athenia by radio news broadcast and it didn't help any to realize that, at the time, they were only 150 miles from the spot where the Athenia was submerged.

Dahle refers, in his letter, to a rather interesting mental reaction.

In the early hours of one morning all passengers were awakened and told to dress and get on deck as rapidly as possible, because an "enemy" warship was in sight. They did so and watched the approaching fighting vessel. They were all tremendously relieved—passengers, ship's officers and crew—when it turned out to be a British ship.

Only after the incident was over did they realize, all of them, that it had been strange for them to automatically consider a possible German ship a "enemy" and a British ship "ours." For, of course, they were a neutral, a Swedish ship.

Their vessel touched at Lisbon and then didn't touch port again until Capetown. But, says Dahle, they didn't feel quite safe and comfortable, in regard to "enemy" raiders or submarines, until they were south of the Canary Islands.

They are now established in their new home—I said they were honeymooners—but lack a lot of things they'd like to have. For, you see, nearly all their clothes and a lot of furnishings and fittings for their home, are in those trunks they last saw on the Cunard pier at Southampton.

Shipboard Friendships.

Strange, how acquaintanceships made on shipboard come, in memory, so much more to the fore than the similar passing human contacts on land.

There is, for instance, that young Scot, a resident of Pittsburgh, who was such company on the S. S. Parisian in 1925. And the two Scotch girls, sisters, both of them trained nurses with homes in New York, who were on the same passenger list.

The young fellow from Virginia, on the eastbound voyage in 1925, who was going over to install some newly invented cigarette-making machinery in British factories of the American Tobacco Company. How he, grown to manhood under prohibition, always had to have some sort of "medicinal" excuse for the single highball we enjoyed before turning in each night.

There is, even, the memory of that kindly woman who occupied the creaky cack neighboring mine on the S. S. Parisian in 1904 and who persuaded me to try that tall glass of lemon juice, the first food of any sort I'd taken for three days of seasickness. The only time I've been seasick, by the way. But what an awful three days that was!

And the little fellow from Manchester, on that same 1904 voyage.

And many others. Wonder where they are now? Good folks, all of 'em.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Friday, January 22, 1915:

"Arneim, Netherlands, January 21.—(Via London).—A passenger arriving today from Germany asserts that Allied airmen yesterday threw bombs upon the town of Essen, destroying a number of houses. Essen is the home of the Krupp steel works."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Wednesday, January 22, 1890:

"Invitations have been issued to the thirty-fifth anniversary reception and hop of the Gate City Guard, at their armory next Tuesday evening."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

No Good To Argue NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—It really does no good to argue with those who are devoted to the CIO, because they start from the premise that majority rule cancels minority rights and that organized labor must engage in politics. Anyone who does not concede these things as a beginning is a Fascist.

But I hold that even a standpoint or reactionary Republican has rights and that if he is forced to join a CIO union he ought not be compelled to contribute the tiniest fraction of his union dues to the support of the Democratic ticket. He should not be forced even to lend that much money for the CIO and its component unions have no right to endorse the New Deal, for example, or the Ham and Eggs plan or the Spanish Loyalists' cause, the endorsement of which did cause serious trouble in the Newspaper Guild, as long as there is a single dissenting vote.

If Joining Was Optional Anyone who maintains the right of the CIO or any component union to endorse any of these things by majority vote places no limit on the variety of things that may be endorsed in this way. The majority could endorse atheism, for example, or free love, and contribute to campaign funds for these purposes, in which case dissenters would have to choose between losing their right to work and the sacrifice of their principles. The majority could endorse the Communist ticket and contribute to the Communist campaign fund, thus forcing dissenters to support a movement which they held to be traitorous. The CIO has no right to declare for or against propositions which are matters of morals or religious or partisan faith while insisting on the right to compel people to join its ranks. If membership were optional the sky would be the limit. The majority then could endorse anything it wanted and give the entire union treasury to any cause favored by 51 per cent of the members. The minority could get out.

Every man should be free to dissociate himself from any organization which is striving for aims that violate his conscience. But membership is not optional. Thus thousands of Americans are compelled to join in order to obtain or hold jobs, and the CIO would force them to contribute their membership in an organization at war with their beliefs. It isn't necessary for the CIO to take this position at all. It could go back to its original and only legitimate purposes, but it seems very unlikely that it ever will, because the zealots in the movement, not all of whom are Communists, by their very zeal court the politics.

Is Political Movement It is a political movement, if not a party, which claims and, with the help of the national government, enforces a legal right to compel citizens to join and pay or suffer economic ostracism. In other words, the government, by authority of the Wagner act and the labor board, conscripts citizens into a political movement and makes them pay a tax to a private organization.

It takes no lawyer to realize that the first compulsion, the requirement that a citizen join a private organization, is wrong and a violation of the right of the individual. The government has no more right to force a man to join a union and pay taxes to it than it has to require him to join the Elks, Moose, Epworth League, B'nai B'rith, Ancient Order of B'nai B'rith, or the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise. Far from guaranteeing the union's coercive power, the government should defend more vigorously the right of the individual citizen not to join any organization except, in certain rare circumstances, the armed forces of the United States.

That is the simplest and only honest solution of a question that causes almost homicidal wrangles between men. The next best solution, paradoxically, is much worse. The alternative is to use government authority to prevent unions from engaging in political activity or mixing commitments and contributions outside the narrow, legitimate range of union aims.

The CIO would call this a Fascist argument, but I submit that the CIO is much more Fascistic or, if you will, Communist, there being no difference between one and the other.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

RAIN WASHES UP A MINIE BALL We walked around, after the rain, and watched the red earth closely. The lead of the Minie balls, whitened by the oxidation of the years, made them easy to see.

One was found. We looked at it. It would have been easy to deliver a soliloquy on that Minie ball. One might have said: "Well, you have been here a long time, harmless in the earth. The sound of battle, the blood, the men who moaned and those who shrieked, all this has been caught up nicely within the clean, antiseptic-smelling pages of books."

Two hundred and fifty thousand persons go each year to see the Cyclorama in Atlanta. A half million or more visit Gettysburg each year. Cold Harbor, Spotsylvania Court House, Shiloh, The Wilderness, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain—people go to walk over them and to read the iron plaques. A movie called "Gone With the Wind" takes your war as its theme and excites a nation.

"Let's see. You have been here for three-quarters of a century. Lincoln was killed after you came to rest here in the red clay of Georgia's soil; Grant came to the White House and was discredited and died, bravely, writing his memoirs to leave money for his wife. The hatred and strife and the tyranny and the cruelty of the Reconstruction came and went. Grover Cleveland was elected and young Henry Grady marched down the aisle of the Georgia legislature and dissolved it at the news. The Spanish-American War, Teddy and the Rough Riders, the World War which shook the nations of the world and broke them; Cal Coolidge, Careful Cal and his era of false prosperity; the depression, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the New Deal.

"And now a rain washes you up and exposes the whiteness of your years."

STILL A WOUND—AND YET "You still are a wound in the heart of the south, no matter how old you are. You are a symbol. The earth has hid you for 75 years, just as the years hide the wound you made until some rain of passion washes it up like an old white bone of a quarrel, buried long ago by the dogs of war and hate.

"You are a symbol of why we think as we do; why we have our sneaking mobs and sudden gusts of action for which later we are ashamed."

"You have helped our fields to wash into the rivers; you have helped our barns become unsteady and unpainted in the lots back of the farm houses; you have helped the fields in many sections be nothing but cotton, row on row. You have helped us with our demagogues, speaking from summer platforms while patient, hopeful men stand listening, their hands hard with the marks of toil; their faces burned with suns of many summers, their hearts wanting desperately to put their trust in a worthy man. You have helped the demagogues with their words and with emotions in the hearts of the listening men; emotions in their blood and bones, that heed the words.

"I could put you down and buy you deep, so deep the rains of a decade or a half century must fall to wash you up to the light of day again. Yet the wound would remain."

One could go on with such a soliloquy. On and on.

And yet—there is something else.

IT IS NOT ALL WOUND The other night a man came to the house and sat and talked. He was an old man.

"I knew a man who had looked into the eyes of Napoleon," he said. "One man stands between you and another who knew and talked with him."

Another man came to the office and said: "I remember going with my father to visit Jefferson Davis, the President of the Confederacy. I remember how he looked."

The son of Henry Grady told me one day: "I remember going to New York with papa. We saw Sherman there at the hotel, went to his room. I remember how he looked and how his voice sounded."

An old, gentle lady who lives in the shadow of Kennesaw Mountain, said:

"Joe Johnston had his headquarters in my house. I was a child then. This very house. I remember them going over their maps."

A man sat in a room and said:

"Lee never had any reserves. He had to rally the men who were defeated and make them turn. A man turn. A man turn. This fellow said my uncle never stopped trotting, just trotted in a circle and started back again."

It is not all wound. There is something in this business of a heritage. I feel a little sorry for a boy of today who doesn't thrill to a story of courage; who thinks that history is all shoddy and the bunk. There are times when the most strenuous one can have is a heritage. A memory of courage, a story of gallantry that sticks in the brain can stiffen a backbone and the will.

It is not all wound, that war. The Minie ball washed up by the rain also is a symbol of courage, of Robert E. Lee and of all that was good and gracious and valiant and kind.

What is our answer to be? I wonder.

The Slaves, Given the Right to Vote, Still Practice Voodoo Rites After Dark

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

When the prime minister of Japan feels the need of relaxation and goes on a lone lonesome, no friend sneaks him into a cab and gets him home the back way. He makes his whoopee out in the open, and the papers next morning cheerfully chronicle the fact that the head of the state was sooused. The Japanese think it no disgrace to get drunk.

Their standard of virtue in other particulars is equally tolerant, and their conception of modesty keeps the bashful visitor unhappy. In cold weather, men, women and children soak together for hours in a vast tub of hot water—not because they need that much cleaning, but because that is the cheapest way for all members of the family to get warm at once.

In hot weather, girl clerks in the stores strip off everything above the waist, and only the alien customer feels embarrassed.

The public toilets are open to the world and free of sex discrimination. The startled American patron may at any time find himself flanked by two ladies.

If the farmer's daughter is a good-looking, she may go to town and sign up for a definite period as an "entertainer." Nobody is shocked, for women are merely work stock and conveniences. And when she has saved enough money to pay off the mortgage on the old place, she returns home and marries a farm boy who is rather proud of of having a wife with city polish.

When patriots feel the urge to serve, they do it violently. Of the last sixteen prime ministers, exactly half have been marked for assassination by dissatisfied citizens, and five of them actually killed. Their offense, in almost every case, consisted in dealing reasonably with foreign powers. Any official who makes a trade that doesn't give Japan a big edge is considered a traitor. And the patriot who bumps him off is punished lightly, if at all.

CLERGY TO OPEN WEEK'S PROGRAM ELWOOD COOKE DEFEATS ALLOO IN ST. PETE FINAL

Oregonian's Victory Is
His Second Straight in Florida West Coast.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore., sixth ranking player of the United States, literally blasted Ed Alloo, Berkeley, Calif., entrant, off the courts here today to win the Florida west coast tennis singles and a second leg on the west coast trophy.

Cooke won in straight sets, 6-4, 6-1, 6-1, to repeat his 1938 victory here.

The dapper little Oregon player, runner-up to Bobby Riggs in the Wimbledon championship in England last summer and co-captain of the Wimbledon doubles with Riggs, scored his second straight victory of the winter campaign by completely outclassing the 20-year-old Californian.

His forcing game was too much for Alloo, who apparently spent himself yesterday defeating the Britisher, Charles Hare, and Henry Prusoff, Seattle, Wash., to reach the final round.

Cooke took a commanding lead in the first set, and coasted the rest of the match. Road Methodist church will direct a discussion at the Sigma Chi house.

R. B. Eleazer, educational director for the Southern Intercollegiate Commission, will speak Wednesday at the Sigma Chi house. Mac Anthony, pastor of the Thomsen, Ga., First Methodist church, at the Kappa Alpha house; Dr. Loewer, at the Chi Phi house, and Rabbi David Marx of the Temple at the Sigma Nu house.

A. T. O. to Hear Smart. Wednesday night Dr. Smart will speak at the Alpha Tau Omega house, and Rabbi David Marx at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house. Thursday noon Rabbi Marx will be at the Alpha Tau Omega house, and Dr. Anthony at the Chi Phi house.

Destroyer Goes to Her Final Berth—Beneath Waves

A SWAN WAS NEVER MORE GRACEFUL THAN THIS

and another Italian destroyer, the Bob of playful nature so familiar to the movies. He is ruthless, cold, money and power mad. Rescued in an orphanage, bounced in the gutter, he climbs to riches as a gang boss.

Fantastically, this gangster inherits an English title. Wanting only the money from the estate, he goes to England. Titles and families mean nothing to the gangster earl. He has no tradition, but under the guidance of his butler picks up some. The gradual softening of the character is magnificent acting. But it's not until he's killed a "pal," Edward Arnold, for "ratting" that the full meaning of his heritage sinks in. But in the end, he dies every inch a lord. —LEE ROGERS.

in the Mediterranean while en route from Italy to South America.

Fifty German passengers were taken from the Orazio and a number of German-owned securities were found on the Augustus. The Germans were placed in a concentration camp near Aix-en-Provence, France.

The Orazio, capable of making 15 knots, was built at shipyards at Baia, near Naples, Italy, by the Navigazione Generale Italiana. She sailed from Genoa for Valparaiso, Chile, on her maiden voyage.

October, 1927, and since has been in the South American service. She has accommodations for 650 passengers.

In 1937 the Orazio played the rescuer's role, taking 81 passengers from the Chilean steamship Puelo, which burned off the coast of Peru.

Victory over Tennessee's better-than-average team sent Kentucky's defending champions into front ranks of the Southeastern Conference basketball race, leaving only two of the 13 members undefeated in loop competition.

Kentucky's preseason favorites and Mississippi State are at the head of the field but both have been defeated in only one conference contest each. Close on their heels is Alabama, another serious contender when its injured high-scoring George Prather returns to center. The Alabama basketball team, beaten by Louisiana State and Tennessee in duals, has now scored five victories in the most active conference campaign thus far.

The Kentucky Wildcats, inaugurating its conference schedule after outside competition which included victories over Kansas State, Ohio State, West Virginia, Clemson and Xavier, gave Tennessee its first loop setback, 35-26, in last week's featured afternoon game.

For the benefit of any strangers in our midst it should be pointed out that he is the supreme authority on debaters. It is traditional that he heads the annual debaters' Halloween ball with the president of the club. And he probably has attended more debut parties than any other living man in Atlanta. His parties are famous and it is not unusual for him to entertain a current deb and his mother, to whom he has danced at her debut.

Little Posing Done Here. As for the models' complaint that society girls are posing for the fun of it, and are not professional models, they should be reminded that they are models, and should rightfully be theirs. The debs here say that they have made no effort to get modeling jobs. Any posing that they have done has been engineered by various advertisers who particularly wanted society models, they declared.

Professional models in Boston are circulating petitions which they will submit to Governor Leverett Saltonstall, asking that society girls be prohibited from posing under a state law. They want the law to be given professional standing similar to hairdressers or nurses. This, they say, would eliminate unfair amateur competition from a group which gets by on the impressiveness of their names rather than on their beauty.

"Boston Girls Not Frumps." Mrs. Marjorie Bush-Brown, Atlanta portrait painter, who is a native of Boston, would not make a statement as to the relative beauty of Atlanta or Boston debs, but she did say "There is a preponderance of beauty among Atlanta girls. I can't say that Boston debs are frumps, for that is not true, but probably there are more society beauties here than anywhere else in America."

Atlanta is now waiting for the Boston girls to choose their weapons. Mr. Paine will wager that the Atlanta girls in hoop skirts can beat the Yankee girls in sarongs.

These Mornings. It has required plenty of character to meet the responsibilities of life these last few mornings. I listened to the milkman's feet on the frozen ground at daylight, and I felt a renewed sense of thanksgiving for his courage and his fidelity. It took me back to my boyhood days when, on cold mornings, I was tempted to let the calves have most of the milk.

And I have thought about these boys delivering the morning paper—walking through these streets and lanes with a pack of papers on their backs and the temperature hovering around zero. You just have to take your hat off to young fellows with character like that.

And what about these cooks that get up in their unheated houses, fix breakfast for their own family, and trudge through the cold to our homes to prepare our breakfast and get us off to work on time? I tell you, that takes real character.

And what about the farmer that had to get up these last few mornings and bring his produce in town before daylight, ready for the buyers at the wholesale rows? And after freezing to death several times during the morning, have the buyers express regrets that the produce is too damaged by the cold. Man, man!

By the way, there's one thing we can be thankful for. We don't have to hitch up fidgety mules like we used to. Remember how you would just about have him hitched to the wagon, your hands about to freeze, and he would get one of his front feet on your foot, and twist it around? But is it much better to have to fiddle around with a frozen up car?

Ever notice how much longer it takes a streetcar to come on mornings like we have been having? Or how much faster your watch seems to run when you are already late, having tried to start the car, and having called everybody you know to come by and pick you up?

These mornings! Well, it has been pretty tough, but think of the fun we have had—the joy of being well enough to battle with the cold, and we will agree, perhaps, that it wasn't so bad after all.

EXCLUSIVE

Ballot Battleground

Fight for States
ns, Poll Finds.

Atlantic and east central states is so evenly divided at the present time that neither John D. M. Hamilton nor Jim Farley can count them as safe.

Here is the way the two sections divide at the present time, in answer to the question: "Which party would you like to see win the presidential election in 1940?"

Atlantic States 52% Dem. 48% Rep. 52%
Central States 48% 52%

Numbered among the middle Atlantic states are New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia. The east central states are Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. Throughout the area as a whole the Institute found approximately one voter in six undecided or without a definite opinion on his choice at this time.

The vote in the remaining sections of the country is: New England, 56 per cent Republican; west central states, 51 per cent Democratic; south, 75 per cent Democratic, and west, 60 per cent Democratic. For the country as a whole, 54 per cent said they hoped to see a Democratic President elected, while 46 per cent favored a Republican.

Political sentiment may change substantially next summer when the actual nominations of the two great parties have been made, but the present survey gives an advance picture of where the Democrats and Republicans will try to "bear down" most, where some of the most important campaign speeches will be made, and where the struggle for votes will continue with great intensity up to the eve of election day.

The clue to the problem is the big allotment of electoral votes which these ten northeastern states control. New England (leaning Republican today) has only 41 electoral votes, and the south and west together (leaning Democratic) 211. Neither bloc of states can muster the necessary 251 electoral college votes for a majority.

An interesting sidelight is the fact that all three of the Republican presidential possibilities most frequently mentioned by the rank and file—Thomas E. Dewey, Senator Vandenberg and Senator Taft—come from the "battleground" area. So does President Roosevelt.

Ballot Battleground

Fight for States
Poll Finds.

Atlantic and east central states is so evenly divided at the present time that neither John D. M. Hamilton nor Jim Farley can count them as safe.

Here is the way the two sections divide at the present time, in answer to the question: "Which party would you like to see win the presidential election in 1940?"

Middle Atlantic States	Dem.	Rep.
East	48	52

Numbered among the middle Atlantic states are New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia. The east central states are Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. Throughout the area as a whole the Institute found approximately one voter in six undecided or without a definite opinion on his choice at this time.

The vote in the remaining sections of the country is: New England, 56 per cent Republican; west central states, 51 per cent Democratic; south, 75 per cent Democratic; and west, 60 per cent Democratic. For the country as a whole, 54 per cent said they hoped to see a Democratic President elected, while 46 per cent favored a Republican.

Political sentiment may change substantially next summer when the actual nominations of the two great parties have been made, but the present survey gives an advance picture of where the Democrats and Republicans will try to "beat down" most, where some of the most important campaign speeches will be made, and where the struggle for votes will continue with great intensity up to the eve of election day.

The clue to the problem is the big allotment of electoral votes which these ten northeastern states contribute. New England (leaning Republican today) has only 41 electoral votes, and the south and west together (leaning Democratic) 211. Neither bloc of states can muster the necessary 261 electoral college votes for a majority.

An interesting sidelight is the fact that all three of the Republican presidential possibilities most frequently mentioned by the rank and file—Thomas E. Dewey, Senator Vandenberg and Senator Taft—come from the "battleground" area. So does President Roosevelt.

CAB'S MUSICIANS
MAKE ALL-AMERICAWhiteman Selects Two for His Mythical Band.

Cozy Coles and "Chu" Berry, two members of Cab Calloway's band which plays here to a white audience at the auditorium at 8 o'clock, Wednesday night, were picked by Paul Whiteman as members of his all-American mythical band.

Cole plays the drums and Berry, the tenor sax. Calloway's band will play "Dixie," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Man River" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" in swingtime in the "Hi-De-Ho" style. The band plays Wednesday night for white patrons and Thursday night for negroes.

himself, whose plans for 1940 remain a mystery.

How would the "battleground" section vote if the Democratic candidate were President Roosevelt again and Thomas E. Dewey, who is leading in the Institute's Republican preference tests today? As usual when flesh-and-blood candidates are placed together in such "trial heats," President Roosevelt gains the support of a few additional voters who are not anxious for a third term but who prefer him to individual Republican candidates.

The present survey shows that a slight majority of middle Atlantic state voters (52 per cent) now think they would prefer Roosevelt to Dewey, while 53 per cent in the east central states think they would prefer Dewey.

and another Italian man, Augustus, were stopped by French warships on November 2 in the Mediterranean while en route from Italy to South America.

Fift; German passengers were taken from the Orazio and a number of German-owned securities were found on the Augustus. The Germans were placed in a concentration camp near Aix-en-Provence, France.

The Orazio, capable of making 15 knots, was built at shipyards at Baia, near Naples, Italy, by the Navigazione Generale Italiana. She sailed from Genoa for Valparaiso, Chile, on her maiden voyage in October, 1927, and since has been in the South American service. She has accommodations for 650 passengers.

In 1937 the Orazio played the rescuer's role, taking 81 passengers from the Chilean steamship Pude, which burned off the coast of Peru.

were "only technicians and skilled ratings (seamen) particularly useful to the German war effort." Passengers said that as the Asama Maru reached sight of land proceeding toward Yokohama, a gray warship, apparently a light cruiser with its name obliterated, drew near and hoisted signals for the Japanese ship to stop. The Asama Maru continued on her way until a shot was fired across her bow.

The boarding party consisted of three officers and nine seamen who acted with "the utmost courtesy" and completed their examination in an hour and a half, it was said. All German passports were checked against a previously prepared list. The captives were transferred to the warship in two trips of a power launch.

The ship's captain, Yoshitada Watabe, said he first told the British officer there was "no reason why the Germans should be handed over," but later agreed to the removal.

Watabe declared that for an hour after the Asama Maru halted "a semi-merchantman which appeared to be armed" kept about two miles away and then disappeared.

MRS. EARL DUNCAN
STRUCK BY AUTO

Reported in Serious Condition at Hospital.

Mrs. Earl Duncan, 24, of Kennesaw, Ga., is in serious condition at Crawford Long Memorial hospital as a result of injuries received Saturday night when struck by an automobile police said was driven by Donald Floyd, 24, of 432 North avenue.

Mrs. Duncan was crossing the street in front of 316 North avenue with her husband and his sister, Evelyn Louise Duncan, when hit, police reported. Miss Duncan was also struck, police said, but was dismissed from the hospital this morning after treatment for minor injuries. Duncan was not injured. Mrs. Duncan received head injuries and a compound fracture of the left leg.

Celtics Beat Crackers, 33-26, To Take Deciding Game of Series

All in the Game

—by Jack Troy

It is almost as amazing as if a baseball umpire one day should suddenly decide—"This batter is a good boy. I think I'll just give him four strikes if he needs them."

OLE MAN RIBBER

(He's bottled again)

Major Bill Britton, of Tennessee, also had heard about it and he was of the opinion, as was Hutchens, that it is an unparalleled case.

In the first place, it would have been mighty nice for Tennessee had Conlen called slugging, instead of unnecessary roughness, when Southern Cal was on the Vol 12-yard line with only a minute left to play in the first half.

It really was slugging—the plain old-fashioned common garden variety—and Tennessee would have been more pleased than otherwise had the offending end been ejected from the game, as the rules stipulate in such cases.

For, then, they would have been penalized only half the distance to the goal. Since it was called unnecessary roughness—due to "coast chivalry"—a 15-yard penalty was slapped on and the Trojans given the ball at the one-yard line. And five yards at such a time might have made a whale of a difference, as it took the Trojans two downs to get over the goal line—first time in 16 games a foe had crossed the Tennessee double stripes.

Such rule-breaking might have cost the Vols a ball game, or at least a tie. And certainly, as any football official anywhere knows, slugging is slugging. It calls for ejection. There is no rule that says otherwise. And, since the official has admitted that he thought it was slugging, he really deserves part of the credit for the Trojan victory. They ought to give him a big "S. C."

Personally, they ought to throw in a big BOO with a T—for Tennessee—on the end of it, too.

MEET THE MAJOR.

There is a most interesting personality in our town. And he seems to be putting a spark in sports out at Fort McPherson, where he has been stationed since July.

MAJOR SUMMERS.

But the purpose of this piece is not to talk about fighting but to write a few introductory sentences about Major Summers, who came up the hard way in the army and has only seen West Point on visits.

The major played football and baseball at the University of Oregon. He's of the class of '09. He has been athletic officer everywhere he's been—and he's been places, including the Philippines.

Only thing about the major he already is talking with a southern accent. When he said something about having been athletic officer at Vancouver barracks, the inquiring reporter asked him to spell it.

He has had a shot of Gone With the Wind, however, and that may explain it, although the characters in "GWTW" are pretty faithful regarding southern speech.

Major Summers' chief concern right now is to put the Fort's sensational "swing" session over late this month. Because a successful show will mean a lot to the needy at the Fort. All proceeds will be devoted to the Fort's community chest.

FERDINAND'S CORNER: Coach Bill Alexander was telling a facetious story the other day about a time, long ago, he had come across a quart of bootleg stuff that looked sort of green and had strings in it.

He gave the concoction to Burton, venerable colored trainer at Tech, and some time later asked him how he liked it. "It was just right," responded Burton.

"What do you mean, just right?" Alex asked. "Well, effen it had been any wuss, I couldn't o' drunk it, and effen it had been any better you wouldn't o' give it to me," Burton replied.

Harry Davis gave a luncheon for a few of the coaches the day after the Touchdown Club's big bowl party. . . . Alex, Harry Mehre, Red Dawson, Rex Enright, Weems Baskin, Chuck Jaskewich and Alan Shi were present, not to forget football official, Pup Phillips, and Mrs. Phillips, and Bob and Mrs. Wilby. . . .

Going back to Burton, he made a great hit with Fred Snite, the courageous young man in the iron lung, when Tech played Notre Dame at South Bend, and he renewed acquaintances with Snite at Miami when Tech and Missouri met in the Orange Bowl game.

... Few ever will forget the memorable occasion at South Bend. . . . Snite had been more impressed with Burton than the game, apparently, and he sent for him after the game. . . . Just to make conversation, Burton said, "Young man, effen you don't get out o' that box and get out in the sunshine, you gwine die."

Snite laughed until the tears rolled down his cheeks. . . . "If I do get out I'll die, Burton," he finally responded. . . . Incidentally, young Snite is able to get out for about two hours at a time now.

... There's a red-hot tip going the rounds that a certain line coach not so very far removed from our section is scheduled to join Jess Neely as an assistant at Rice. . . . It would not be fair to mention his name because once before he was embarrassed by a premature story which had him going to a certain South-eastern conference school as head coach. . . . And it didn't pan out.

Actually, a Pacific coast referee took the law into his own hands, so to speak, and completely disregarded the rules on a couple of occasions in the Tennessee-Southern California Rose Bowl game. It has just come to light in this section.

Arthur Hutchens, who is commissioner of southern football officials, revealed yesterday that he had seen a piece in the paper just before leaving California that was very interesting indeed.

It was a piece by Referee L. G. Conlen, who explained that he had a couple of opportunities to disqualify Tennessee players because of slugging but called roughing instead. He said he did this because Tennessee was visiting the coast.

Major Bill Britton, of Tennessee, also had heard about it and he was of the opinion, as was Hutchens, that it is an unparalleled case.

In the first place, it would have been mighty nice for Tennessee had Conlen called slugging, instead of unnecessary roughness, when Southern Cal was on the Vol 12-yard line with only a minute left to play in the first half.

It really was slugging—the plain old-fashioned common garden variety—and Tennessee would have been more pleased than otherwise had the offending end been ejected from the game, as the rules stipulate in such cases.

For, then, they would have been penalized only half the distance to the goal. Since it was called unnecessary roughness—due to "coast chivalry"—a 15-yard penalty was slapped on and the Trojans given the ball at the one-yard line. And five yards at such a time might have made a whale of a difference, as it took the Trojans two downs to get over the goal line—first time in 16 games a foe had crossed the Tennessee double stripes.

Such rule-breaking might have cost the Vols a ball game, or at least a tie. And certainly, as any football official anywhere knows, slugging is slugging. It calls for ejection. There is no rule that says otherwise. And, since the official has admitted that he thought it was slugging, he really deserves part of the credit for the Trojan victory. They ought to give him a big "S. C."

Personally, they ought to throw in a big BOO with a T—for Tennessee—on the end of it, too.

MEET THE MAJOR.

There is a most interesting personality in our town. And he seems to be putting a spark in sports out at Fort McPherson, where he has been stationed since July.

I speak of Major Owen Summers, aide to General Robert Van Horn. Major Summers came to Fort Mac from War College and he already has started a fight—program. All CCC winners of District B are going to battle it out in the new Fort gymnasium the end of this month and the first two days of February.

The boys in khaki are going to battle it out for the honor of their respective districts—of which there are six in the states of Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina and Alabama.

But the purpose of this piece is not to talk about fighting but to write a few introductory sentences about Major Summers, who came up the hard way in the army and has only seen West Point on visits.

The major played football and baseball at the University of Oregon. He's of the class of '09. He has been athletic officer everywhere he's been—and he's been places, including the Philippines.

Only thing about the major he already is talking with a southern accent. When he said something about having been athletic officer at Vancouver barracks, the inquiring reporter asked him to spell it.

He has had a shot of Gone With the Wind, however, and that may explain it, although the characters in "GWTW" are pretty faithful regarding southern speech.

Major Summers' chief concern right now is to put the Fort's sensational "swing" session over late this month. Because a successful show will mean a lot to the needy at the Fort. All proceeds will be devoted to the Fort's community chest.

FERDINAND'S CORNER: Coach Bill Alexander was telling a facetious story the other day about a time, long ago, he had come across a quart of bootleg stuff that looked sort of green and had strings in it.

He gave the concoction to Burton, venerable colored trainer at Tech, and some time later asked him how he liked it. "It was just right," responded Burton.

"What do you mean, just right?" Alex asked. "Well, effen it had been any wuss, I couldn't o' drunk it, and effen it had been any better you wouldn't o' give it to me," Burton replied.

Harry Davis gave a luncheon for a few of the coaches the day after the Touchdown Club's big bowl party. . . . Alex, Harry Mehre, Red Dawson, Rex Enright, Weems Baskin, Chuck Jaskewich and Alan Shi were present, not to forget football official, Pup Phillips, and Mrs. Phillips, and Bob and Mrs. Wilby. . . .

Going back to Burton, he made a great hit with Fred Snite, the courageous young man in the iron lung, when Tech played Notre Dame at South Bend, and he renewed acquaintances with Snite at Miami when Tech and Missouri met in the Orange Bowl game.

... Few ever will forget the memorable occasion at South Bend. . . . Snite had been more impressed with Burton than the game, apparently, and he sent for him after the game. . . . Just to make conversation, Burton said, "Young man, effen you don't get out o' that box and get out in the sunshine, you gwine die."

Snite laughed until the tears rolled down his cheeks. . . . "If I do get out I'll die, Burton," he finally responded. . . . Incidentally, young Snite is able to get out for about two hours at a time now.

... There's a red-hot tip going the rounds that a certain line coach not so very far removed from our section is scheduled to join Jess Neely as an assistant at Rice. . . . It would not be fair to mention his name because once before he was embarrassed by a premature story which had him going to a certain South-eastern conference school as head coach. . . . And it didn't pan out.

The Celtics naturally know every trick of the basketball trade and their tactics often escape the attention of the sharpest-eyed officials. Note the picture at left. Bo Johnston, Atlanta Cracker center, has just taken a floor pass from Bob Lieb, extreme right, who is being blocked by Paul Birch, No. 17. Dennis O'Connor, No. 18, is ready to grab the ball. The Celtics won, 33-26, for a two-to-one edge in this interesting series, but they had to battle for it. The Crackers are not yet convinced the Celtics are the better team.

N. C. STATE PLANS TO AID ATHLETES

Athletic Scholarships Will Be Awarded Openly in Future.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 21.—(AP) Alumni of North Carolina State College announced today that athletic scholarships would be openly awarded students who meet qualifications at the institution for at least the next five years.

D. W. (Dutch) Seifert, of Weldon, elected president of the group which organized the Wolfpack Club, said the club would provide athletic scholarships for all sports from contributions made by alumni and supporters.

N. C. State is a member of the Southern conference.

N. C. State is a unit of the University of North Carolina, of which Dr. Frank P. Graham is president. In 1936, Dean J. W. Harrelson, who is a founder of the Wolfpack Club, voted with President Graham for the so-called Graham plan, intended to prohibit giving special preference to athletes in award of scholarships in the Southern conference. The plan was virtually repealed two years ago.

"Whether we like it or not, subsidizing of athletes is and has been going on for years in every school of our acquaintance," said President Seifert. "For the last two years we have endeavored to bring our proselyting activities out from under the table."

"We believe that the time has come for athletic scholarships to be placed on a businesslike basis, open and aboveboard from every standpoint. And that is exactly what we are going to do."

Man Who Discovered Gene Tunney Is Dead

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 21.—(AP) John (Jack) Lewis, 52, "discoverer" of Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion and widely known boxing promoter and referee in the 1920's, died at his home here today.

Lewis became prominent in boxing circles following the World War and was a promoter in New York state and Canada more than 10 years.

He refereed a match in which Gene Tunney, then a marine, took part, and predicted then that Tunney would be a champion.

Lewis counted among his personal friends Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Jack Keems, Damon Runyon, Arthur (Bugs) Baer and other prominent sportsmen and writers.

Tulane Plays Rice, Georgia Next Season

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Rice, Georgia and Louisiana Normal College replace Mississippi, Columbia and Sewanee on Tulane's 1940 football schedule, which except for the opening game was announced tonight by Athletic Director Wilbur C. Smith.

THE SCHEDULE.
Sept. 28—(Game pending).
Oct. 5—Auburn here.
Oct. 12—Fordham at New York.
Oct. 19—Rice here.
Oct. 26—North Carolina at Chapel Hill.
Nov. 2—Clemson here.
Nov. 9—Alabama in Birmingham.
Nov. 16—Georgia here.
Nov. 23—Louisiana Normal here.
Nov. 30—Louisiana State at Baton Rouge.

BOB JOHNSON SIGNS.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Outfielder Bob Johnson, who finished third last season among American league hitters with a mark of .338, has signed a two-year contract with the Philadelphia Athletics. It was announced Saturday night, Johnson, who mailed his contract from his Tacoma, Wash., home, reportedly will receive $20,000 a year.

Celtics Had Rivals Playing Into Hands

Crackers Forsook Fast Break in Third Game; Compared to Olsen's Swedes.

By JACK TROY.
The Atlanta Crackers played into the hands of the world champion Celtics yesterday. They played the kind of game the Celtics wanted them to play and lost the third game of the series. In addition, the Crackers were not hitting the basket. Bo Johnston and Virlyn Moore were off just a fraction in their timing.

However, it was a whale of a ball game. The Celtics played their cards right and hit the basket well enough—in a tough game—to win, 33-26. The Crackers instead of playing their customary fast-breaking game, were doing a lot of standing around. Two overtime-period contests against Dixie Aces at Chattanooga might have had something to do with it. But the fact remains it was right down the Celtics' alley.

It was interesting to wander down memory lane yesterday at Sports Arena and recall the record of the amazing Celtics. They have been coming south now for 15 years. They have played against 1,000 games in Dixie. And only five times have southern teams been able to beat them.

The teams include Texas Christian at Fort Worth, Brown Paper Mill at Monroe, La.; Baldwin, Miss.; Mississippi College and the Crackers.

The Celtics didn't play T. C. U. or Brown Paper Mill again, but they beat Baldwin and Mississippi College and swamped them. The Crackers are the only team in the south that has beat them and still managed to stay close in the following game.

There is just one answer to all critics who think that the Celtics don't play for keeps at all times. The answer is that they have been built up in the public mind as an invincible team—and it hurts their drawing power in all sections to lose. And especially does it hurt them in the east and mid-west.

I recall when the Original Rosenblum Celtics first began coming south—when the team was composed of Pete Barry, Joe Lapchick, Dutch Dehnert, Nat Holman and Christ Leonard. Nat Hickey and Dave Banks joined them later.

The present team of Banks, Herlihy, Hickey, Birch and Saunders is not so great as the original combination, but it's still one of the greatest in the game. Good enough, in fact, to be called the pro champions. Because it is.

Then, too, the Celtics face a different situation in the south today. You must give a coach like Shep Lauter some credit. He knows the Celtics' style pretty well and he knows the type of shifting defense which works against them to best advantage. Basketball in the south is a lot better than it was when the Celtics first started coming down our way.

It may be that the big man, Carlos Grubbs, wealthy sportsman of Terre Haute, Ind., and a former great player himself, has the answer regarding the Crackers. Grubbs is on the southern tour with the Celtics because he loves basketball.

"If I wasn't so sure," he said yesterday, "I'd say that team out there wearing the Atlanta uniforms were the Olson Swedes. I never have seen a team operate so much like the Swedes."

He was speaking of the original Olson Swedes, one of the nearest combinations in basketball history.

It just happens that the Atlanta Crackers are an exceptional outfit. They could slip into a top-flight professional league and do pretty well for themselves.

They Make It Difficult For the Officials.

The Celtics are past masters at the art of trickery. They commit one long succession of fouls from the opening toss to the end of a game. If officials were to attempt to call all the fouls, it would be a whistle-blowing contest instead of a basketball game. The Celtics make it tough on the officials.

COLLEGE MEET SET AT ATHENS

Annual Southern Intercollegiate Golf Event Stated April 11-13.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 21.—The Southern intercollegiate golf tournament will be held here April 11, 12, 13, it was announced by the University of Georgia committee which has charge.

It will be the sixth annual tournament, and according to Johnny Broadnax, spokesman for the committee, it will attract the largest field in history.

"We have communications from several colleges asking for information on the tournament in order that they can complete their golf schedules," Broadnax said.

Outstanding teams are expected to be sent from Duke University, which won the title, and furnished the individual champion and medalist in 1939; L. S. U., Mississippi, Georgia Tech, and several northern schools.

Joe Taylor won the championship last year and "Skip" Anderson of Duke was the medalist. L. S. U. won team laurels three of the first four years and North Carolina University the other.

Past individual winners are Paul Leslie and Freddie Haas Jr., both of L. S. U.; Rosser Little, Georgia; and Tommy Barnes, Georgia Tech.

Qualifying this year will be over the 36-hole route with two rounds of match play both Friday and Saturday. There will be as many flights as necessary to take care of the entries.

6 Foursomes Play In East Lake Meet

Only six foursomes participated in the weekly dogfight tournament Sunday afternoon over the East Lake course. Two foursomes tied for first place with a score of 129. They were Dr. A. O. Linch, Dr. H. W. Ridley, Dr. H. P. McDonald, John Blick and Alfred Sargent, S. M. Haw, S. P. Thompson and C. W. Lawson.

Second with a score of 130 were Harold Sargent, A. P. McElroy, Jack Sargent and Dr. T. E. McGeachy.

SPLIT TWIN BILL

COVINGTON, Ga., Jan. 21.—Palmer Stone High School split a doubleheader basketball card here Saturday night. Palmer Stone girls won the opening game, 32-17. Clara Butler scored 21 points for the winners while Hooten's 10 points were best for Covington.

In the boys' game Covington led all the way and won, 20-12.

And yet that's the pro style of play.

And speaking of officiating, the work of Walton Laney and Harold Bennett was exceptional in yesterday's game. They called only the most flagrant violations—turned the game strictly over to the players.

A COMBINED ALL-TIMER.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—Harry Stuhldreher, one of the star Four Horsemen, now football coach at Wisconsin, began getting reminiscent during a recent round of golf. We were talking of old days at Notre Dame, of the Four Horsemen who averaged just 160 pounds—Stuhldreher, Layden, Miller and Crowley—of a line that averaged below 190, a team of speed and smartness that was always outclassed in physical bulk.

We talked about Gipp, the amazing Gipper—about the Army game in which Adam Walsh played center with four bones broken in his left hand and five in his right hand—about the line plunging of Eichenlaub—about the hard-hitting Red Miller, who broke a Michigan goal post squarely in two in scoring a touchdown.

We recalled Rockne's intermission talks, when, as Harry said, the Rock made you believe there was nothing else important in life except winning that football game.

Stuhldreher gave the nod to Rockne's 1930 team as the Notre Dame top. This outfit boasted a backfield that included Savoldi, Brill, Schwartz, Carideo, Mullins, O'Connor and a few others, playing in back of a great line. It was this team that scored 35 points against Pittsburgh and 60 points against Pennsylvania in less than 40 minutes—it was this team that lost a couple of star backs and still beat a great Southern California team, 27 to 0.

And from that point we swung into a combined all-time All-America—the Stuhldreher-Rice special—with the shade of Knute Rockne thrown in, so far as Knute's selections go.

The All-Star Cast.

"We'll take the men we've seen," Stuhldreher said, "and the men that great coaches and star players have told us about. We can't miss."

If Harry doesn't think we can miss, he should hear some of the squawks that will probably follow our selections, based almost entirely on college play. We are not talking about the pick of the pros.

Here it goes—
Center—Germany Schulz, Michigan.
Guard—Pudge Heffelfinger, Yale.

Guard—Bochy Koch, Baylor.
Tackle—Fats Henry, W. and J. Tackle—Ed Weir, Nebraska.
End—Buck Muller, Stanford.
End—Wes Fesler, Ohio State.
Quarterback—Jay Berwanger, Chicago.

Halfback—Jim Thorpe, Carlisle.
Halfback—Red Grange, Illinois.
Fullback—George Gipp, Notre Dame.

Asking a Few Whys.

Starting from the top there can't be any sane argument against Germany Schulz and Pudge Heffelfinger at center and guard.

I saw Schulz play his last two years. I was an official. He was six feet five inches in height, he weighed 245 and he was one of the fastest line men on any field. Ask any man who played against him, including Big Bill Hollenback, of Pennsylvania, who has always known what it is all about—plus.

About Heffelfinger—at the age of 54 he was still the best guard in football—ask Bo McMillin, who played with him then. Pudge was still good at the age of 66 when he played his last game, weighing around 260.

Celtics Turn Back Cracker Five, 33-26

Atlanta Team Loses Shooting Eye; Connects Only 8 Times in 58 Field Attempts.

By THAD HOLT.
The Celtics proved they still are kings of the hardwood Sunday by whipping the powerful Atlanta Crackers, 33-26, before 2,600 roaring fans at Sports Arena, in the third and deciding game of a blistering series which has attracted interest throughout the nation.

This game, bitterly fought and exceedingly rough near the close, proved once again that a team may be masters at handling the ball and setting up scoring opportunities, but if it cannot get the ball through that little hole, all its brilliant efforts go for naught.

The story of Sunday's thriller lay in the Crackers' amazing inability to make their shots. Ordinarily a great shooting team, Shep Lauter's boys, who upset the pro wizards last Monday night at Canton, made only eight of 58 attempts for the field goals, less than one conversion in seven attempts.

On the other hand, the Celtics, confronted by a tight, dogged defense, made good 14 times in 48 attempts from the field and cashed in five times in eight tries from the free throw line. The Crackers hit 10 of 18 foul shots.

If one sought an alibi for the home team, he might mention that the Crackers had to go two extra periods to win over the Dixie Aces in their bandbox at Chattanooga and had to turn on the steam to beat Peerless Mills Saturday night.

They might have been a bit fagged out, resulting in missed shots they ordinarily make with ease.

The Celtics might be able to supply a better answer to the Crackers' inaccuracy—their own rugged, slam-bang defensive play which brings to do a great deal of their firing while off-balance.

BO CAN'T HIT.

Early in the game, however, the Crackers ruined their chances. Holding a 4-2 lead they several times fooled the Champions with beautifully executed plays which collapsed when the shooter failed to connect under the basket. More effectiveness at that time might have turned the tide definitely in favor of the Georgians. Bo Johnston during the game missed eight turn-around shots of the one-handed variety—ordinarily his best weapon.

As it was, the Celtics, who turned loose everything they had from going to gong, found the range from far out and took a 21-13 margin at the half.

The game was played in quarters, and would you believe that a bunch of dead-eye dicks like Bo Johnston, Virlyn Moore (who didn't play much in that period), Fred Bradford, Cherry Foster and Ed Copeland could have taken nine shots without hitting a single basket. That's what happened in the third period.

NEVER SAFE.

The Celtics never had more than a nine-point lead in the last half and they never were able to coast, with the Crackers closing powerfully down the stretch.

The champions elected to freeze the ball in the last five minutes in a successful attempt to pull out the tight Cracker defense. Consequently they took only five shots—all near the baskets—and made four of them. Meanwhile, the Crackers were connecting four times in 16 shots.

GOOD OFFICIATING.

The game, capably handled by Walton Laney, J. F. C. coach, and Harold Bennett, of Chattanooga, former Progressive mentor, developed into a near brawl in the last several minutes, with the Crackers turning on the bad, bold Celtics and attempting, fairly successfully, to inflict some of the rough treatment they had been accorded all afternoon.

Virlyn Moore's nine points paced the Cracker attack, while the Celtics were led by Ageless Nat Hickey, who flipped 11 points through the hoops.

It was the Crackers' second defeat in 19 games. They have lost to no other club besides the Cham-

JURORS WILL SEEK

BETTER LOCAL RULE

Meeting Tonight To Consider Plans for Obtaining Improvements.

Representatives of all grand juries which have served in Fulton county during the past two years will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel to consider ways and means of effecting improvements in city and county governments as recommended by the juries.

W. C. Wardlaw Jr., foreman of the September-October, 1939, jury, will preside.

W. Eugene Harrington, president of the One Government League—an organization which is sponsoring a merger of city and county governments—will be the principal speaker.

Harrington will outline a plan for bringing about the governmental reforms recommended by the juries and will report on what recommendations, if any, have been carried out by the county or legislature.

Thomas C. Law, foreman of the July-August, 1939, grand jury, is chairman of the committee on arrangements. The meeting is being sponsored by officers of recent grand juries.

temperatures brought out thousands of Atlantans who have been sticking close to radiators or huddled around stoves or fireplaces.

Downtown streets were fairly well filled and all of the downtown shows had persons standing in line waiting to buy tickets—an unusual sight the past few days due to the severe cold.

Icy Blasts Kill 186 In Nation
By The Associated Press.

The nation-wide cold snap brought 10-foot snow drifts to western New York yesterday, and ice-clogged rivers caused flood dangers in Pennsylvania.

The death toll from exposure, icy roads, and fires caused by overheated stoves reached at least 186 in 30 states. Forecasts indicated little moderation in temperatures today.

A three-day "near blizzard" along Lake Erie left all roads into Buffalo blocked by drifts which reached a 10-foot depth in Genesee county, New York.

About 70 bus passengers were marooned in a farm house near Fenbrook, N. Y., where the vehicle was involved in an accident.

The freezing of Chesapeake bay forced Yankee Clippers to land at Norfolk, Va., instead of Baltimore.

Floating ice cakes in the Mississippi interfered with shipping at Helena, Ark., and almost clogged the river at Richardson's landing, 45 miles above Memphis, Tenn.

Citrus and vegetable crops valued at millions of dollars were threatened in the south, but first reports from Florida and Texas indicated there was no fruit injury and that vegetable damage would be limited to young tomato and pepper plants and outside blooms on strawberry plants.

Another night of sub-freezing temperature was forecast for peninsular Florida.

Settlement of a coal strike-lockout in New York city by acceptance of a 75-cents-a-day wage increase averted the possibility of widespread suffering after four days' stoppage of deliveries.

Anthracite coal operators in Pennsylvania declared there was no immediate danger of a coal shortage, as the difference between production and consumption was filled from a million-ton reserve, sufficient to meet the requirements of a month-long cold siege. They estimated consumption last week at 1,500,000 tons and production at 1,300,000.

Flood dangers mounted in Pennsylvania with a forecast of zero to five degrees below for today. Virtually ever river in the state was frozen over. Navigation was stalled. The Weather Bureau reported conditions getting worse hourly.

The Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers were choked. Numerous upstate points on the Allegheny reported conditions duplicating those which preceded the disastrous St. Patrick's Day flood of 1936.

The Ohio was closed from Pittsburgh to Montgomery dam, 31 miles below, where the ice was almost five inches thick with running ice below.

South Remains Cold.
Forecasts for the south for fair weather with continued cold today and slightly moderated temperatures tomorrow. New Orleans had an even 23 degrees yesterday morning. Jacksonville and Pensacola, 25; Atlanta, 15; Birmingham, 12, and Chattanooga 10.

New England continued cold, with Boston reporting 26 degrees around noon yesterday after a minimum of 18 during the early morning hours. Elsewhere in New England the mercury dropped to zero, with cloudiness and snow forecast and little change in temperature. Two persons were burned to death in their homes.

New York had temperatures of 12 to 15 Saturday night. The Weather Bureau predicted 17 for last night and "not so cold" today. Saturday was the coldest day of the winter, with a minus 6 degrees at Babylon, L. I.

In New Jersey, temperatures ranged from 10 above to 1 below. Northeastern Ohio was blanketed by snow, and temperatures ranged from 10 to 13 around noon. The roads were clear.

Michigan's forecast was 8 to 10 degrees for last night, with scattered snow flurries and no decided change in temperature for some time.

Moonshiners Idle.
In Kentucky, Louisville reported 2 degrees above early yesterday, and predicted 5 to 10 above for last night. United States Alcohol Tax Unit agents said "moonshiners" were taking an enforced holiday, because the mash would not ferment due to the extreme cold.

Deaths due to the cold and exposure totaled 60, to traffic accidents 41, to fires 63, and to other causes 22. The heaviest death list was in Ohio, with 22. Michigan had 13, Kentucky 12, Wisconsin and Missouri 10 each, Texas 18, and Illinois 14.

Hundreds Die In China
SHANGHAI, Jan. 22.—(Monday)—(P)—Numerous deaths and widespread suffering among the poorer classes were reported today as a bitter cold wave swept across central and northern China. The Chinese Burial Society said the bodies of 500 persons, most of them infants, had been picked up in Shanghai streets and in refugee camps.

MEN DIVE INTO BAY AS RELIGIOUS RITE
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(P)—Sub-freezing temperatures did not deter two young worshippers from diving into the ice-caked bay off The Battery today, and retrieving a gold cross to complete ceremonies of the Greek Orthodox church.

Charles Sottos, 19, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Harry Marinos, of Brooklyn, wearing only bathing trunks, leaped into the bay, while 1,500 warm-clad worshippers prayed. The cross was blessed and flung into the water by Bishop Arsenios, head of the Greek Orthodox church here. It symbolized purification of the

GENERAL BUNDY, RETIRED SOLDIER, DIES AT AGE OF 78

Army Leader Fought in Sioux Indian Campaigns
And Was Decorated for World War Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Major General Omar Bundy, whose fighting career ranged from Sioux Indian campaigns in frontier days to major battles of the World War, died today.

Death came to the 78-year-old veteran after a two-year illness in his home here.

Born at New Castle, Ind., Bundy was graduated from West Point in 1883. As a lieutenant, he saw his first action when United States troops moved against the Sioux Indians in South Dakota in 1890-91.

Seven years later he went to Cuba to fight in the Spanish-American War, seeing action at the battle of El Caney and the siege of Santiago. The following year—1898—Bundy was sent to the Philippines. There he was in frequent engagements for six years, starting out with operations against the insurgents and Laredo, and ending with the assault on the Moro stronghold at Mont Dain in 1906.

When the American Expeditionary Force went to France in 1917, Bundy—now a general—was in command of the First Brigade. During the war he commanded the Second, Sixth and Seventh Army Corps at various times.

He served still one more overseas tour of duty before he retired in 1925, going back to the Philippines in 1922 to command the division there.

Nearly two-score years of campaigning brought many decorations to the general, including the Silver Star, with oak leaf cluster, conferred by his own government, and the Legion of Honor (commander) and the Croix de Guerre, with palms, awarded by the French government.

The general is survived by his wife and a brother, James Bundy.

DUCHESS OF KENT'S UNCLE SUCCEUMBS

Prince Christopher Was Husband of Late Mrs.
Leeds, U. S. Heiress.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Reuters (British news agency) said today in a dispatch from Athens that Prince Christopher, 51, an uncle of the Duchess of Kent and former husband of the late Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of America's "Tin Plate King," died tonight.

Prince Christopher was the youngest brother of the late King Constantine of Greece.

In 1920 he married Mrs. Leeds, of Cleveland, Ohio, and when she died three years later he inherited a large part of her fortune.

Six years after, he married Princess Françoise, of France.

His niece, the wife of the young prince of Wales, the Duke of York, was the former Princess Marina, of Greece.

Prince Christopher was taken ill some time ago, and had a serious relapse 10 days ago.

CHURCHILL SPEECH BRINGS WARNING

desires no open or camouflaged inclusion of any kind of the neutrals in this war and Churchill's remarks can only be regarded as a sign of naivete or embarrassment, at any rate as a sign of bad intention.

"The whinnies of Churchill, we believe, will fall on deaf ears."

Nazi political quarters said that Churchill's speech, coupled with a Saturday radio speech by British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, would compel Germany to watch even more closely British activities in the small neutral capitals.

The official D. N. B. news agency said that "Hitler acts like a hypocrite and Churchill whines," and that "surely the neutrals will rightly understand Halifax's references to England's battle for the freedom of the small nations."

"He wants the small nations to offer their services and sacrifice themselves not for their own interests but for British imperialism," the agency said.

"Churchill whines," Churchill, the D. N. B. said, went "whole hog" and "realizing correctly that Britain cannot cope with this war alone, he appeals whinnily to the neutrals in order to seduce them to lend Britain assistance in the war."

"It always has been Britain's aim to expand the war to all Europe," it was stated here, "but it has not been directly admitted before."

Indicating that Germany believes the British government to be dissatisfied with the forthright terms of Churchill's speech, the spokesman said:

"It is interesting that the foreign office in London describes the speech as non-official, indicating that Churchill probably went too far."

DR. WATTS' RITES TO BE HELD TODAY

Widely Known Physician
Died Saturday; Resided
Here for 25 Years.

Final rites for Dr. William Bowers Watts Sr., 74, well-known Atlanta physician who died Saturday at his home, 610 Yorkshire road, will be conducted at 11:30 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill. The Rev. J. Lee Allgood will officiate, and burial will be in Magnolia cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Palbearers will be Paul E. Read, J. C. Slade, R. L. Hays, John McLain, Charles F. Craft, E. H. Hendrix, Dr. J. A. Combs and Andrew J. Banks.

A native of Montezuma, Dr. Watts had been a resident here for more than 25 years. His wife, who survives him, is the former Miss Angie Trippie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Trippie, pioneer residents of Dooly county. They would have celebrated their forty-ninth anniversary on March 19.

Final rites for Stephen Felder, retired veteran of the Atlanta police department, who died Saturday afternoon, will be conducted at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Sacred Heart church.

The Rev. Father J. P. Reis, R. N., will officiate, and burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery under direction of J. Austin Dillon.

A native of Germany, Mr. Felder came to this country at the age of 18 and had lived in Atlanta continuously since. He was connected with the police department for 43 years and retired December 1.

MRS. R. H. HOGG JR. RITES SET IN DALLAS

Prominent Young Atlantan
Was Killed in Auto Crash
Saturday Night.

The body of Mrs. Robert H. Hogg Jr., socially prominent young Atlantan who was killed in an automobile crash Saturday night in Dallas, Texas, will be taken to El Paso, Texas, this morning for funeral services and burial.

Mrs. Hogg died instantly when her car sideswiped a truck just west of Covington while returning to Atlanta from a hunting trip. Mr. Hogg was not seriously hurt and was dismissed from St. Joseph's infirmary yesterday.

Their companions, Dr. R. F. Ingram Jr., and H. H. Jarrett, both of Atlanta, first were taken to the Covington hospital. There it was reported that Dr. Ingram had suffered a fractured leg and arm and Jarrett a fractured leg and possible fracture of the skull.

Both were reported resting comfortably last night at the Georgia Baptist hospital, where they were moved during the day.

Oil Soothes, Guards Complexion; Soap Gives Baby Skin Smoothness

Replace Natural Oils, Normalize Dry Skin

By Lillian Mae.

A soap, the base of which is a complexion oil, is this bland, gentle cleanser which gives such satisfactory results. The soap, I'm told, contains vitamins E and F in such quantity as to correct symptoms of skin and hair due to deficiency of these vitamins in the body.

I've seen a laboratory test report on this soap, which states that it is excellent for dandruff, brittle hair, brittle finger nails and roughness and dryness of the skin, which oftentimes results in eczema and similar skin blemishes.

After cleansing my skin with this grand soap, I smooth on a few drops of the oil, which is the foundation of the soap. This oil certainly does help to normalize skin. I used it long before I heard of the soap.

A woman past 70 asked me recently what I would recommend for her excessively dry skin—due partly to the fact that she stays very closely in her apartment, which I've always found to be entirely too hot. I gave her bits of this oil, and of another to try. In a couple of days she phoned to ask where she could obtain this one, saying it had done so much for her, while the other had failed to accomplish results—even made her face feel drawn and puckered. Now she uses it every night and finds time during the day to apply it also, usually.

I'm told it was patterned directly after the oil of the human skin by a graduate, registered pharmacist, actually containing the lipids which make a baby's skin lovely. So you see, it replaces the natural skin oils which are lost in the daily living and cleansing process.

Unlike many oils, it has a delightful, un-oily scent, and is quickly absorbed by the skin so that it does not interfere with the use of your regular cosmetics—merely giving a normalized complexion on which to work.

This is a splendid time of the year to try the skin oil and soap. Phone me and I'll tell you the names and where they may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for reply.

Youth Loves Variety

By Barbara Bell.

Young girls love variety, and they can achieve a lot of it by using this new design (1901-B) in its different guises. It can be made with organdy frills and organdy collar, or plain, with a square neckline and bands of contrasting trim. It can be made with short sleeves, or with smartly Victorian ones in push-up three-quarter length. The waistline is cut with points in the front, and drawn in to delightful slowness by the sash bow in the back.

The skirt flows to nice, swingy fullness. It's a style supremely becoming to slim young figures, and it's easy to do. Make up the square-necked version in thin wool with daring contrast—gray with scarlet or dull green with violet. Make up the frilly version in silk print or flat crepe.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1901-B is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Corresponding bust measurements 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37. Size 13 (31) requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material, with short sleeves; 5 1/2 yards with three-quarter sleeves without nap; 7 1/2 yards for contrasting collar; 1 7/8 yards ruffling or 2 1/4 yards bias fold.

Price of Patterns, 15c. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Man's Jealousy Flatters Girl When She's In Love

By Caroline Chatfield.

MISS CHATFIELD: Call me the world's biggest fool and I won't resent it. A year ago I fell for a girl who liked me as a friend—you know how that is. I was crazed with jealousy of her dates and every time I showed it she told me she could never love a jealous man. I thought I had a right to be jealous but since she didn't there was only one thing to do: check out. We agreed on this much. Well, I tried manfully to forget her, with poor results, and crawled back to ask another chance, admitting that I had been a fool. But she said no, why go over the same thing again, and punish myself and her. I can't believe that it must stop like this. I have never felt this way about any girl and every day I love her more. Would you know what I could do next to get the toe of my boot in the crack of her door?

Here Are Rebids After Simple Suit Takeout

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Original notrump has told his partner he holds four honor tricks minimum, a 4-3-2-3 hand pattern. Is there anything else he can tell partner about his hand?

Honor-trick requirements for one notrump range from 3 1/2 honor tricks, with eight honor cards, up to 5 1/2 honor-tricks maximum. Partner, for safety's sake, must assume the notrump holds a minimum hand until he hears differently, as:

S-A J 7 D-K Q 9
(1) H-J 10 6 3 C-A Q 6

When original notrump has better than a minimum hand he has one of the necessary essentials for a rebid.

WITH MINIMUM HAND. If partner raised one notrump to two notrump, original notrump passes with the above minimum hand. But assume the holding is:

S-Q 9 3 D-A J 8
(2) H-A Q 9 8 C-K Q 10

Now, there is reason for rebidding two hearts. If partner holds four hearts, game may be played in that suit. Holding 4 1-2 honor-tricks, original notrump should rebid to game in notrump after partner's raise.

If partner jumps to three notrump, pass with a minimum hand. When partner makes a simple suit takeout, denoting a maximum of about one honor-trick, there are three possible rebids for the original notrump:

AFTER SIMPLE TAKEOUT.
(a) With 4 1-2, or more honor-tricks, all unbid suits stopped, rebid two notrump, as when partner bids two diamonds, bid two notrump, holding:

S-K S 6 D-Q 7 6 5
H-A K 9 C-A Q 8

(b) Holding four honor-tricks, eight honor cards, all unbid suits stopped, rebid two notrump, holding:

S-A J 3 D-Q 10 7 6
H-A K 7 C-K 10 9

(c) With a fit for partner's suit, four honor-tricks minimum, all suits stopped, bid two notrump:

S-A K 8 D-A J 6
H-K 10 7 C-Q 10 8 7

With less, pass partner's simple suit takeout.

Anything Wrong With Your Heart?

By Dr. William Brady.

If you remember, most likely not, the other day I quoted the eminent Sir James Mackenzie, whose textbook "Diseases of the Heart" is famous, to the effect that exhaustion of the reserve force of the heart is made evident at first only by subjective symptoms, sensations the patient complains of, and not by physical signs the physician elicits by examining patient or heart.

At the same time I dragged in my own pet notion of vite and mentioned that one of the blessings enjoyed by a person with vite is an adequate fund of reserve power to tide over emergencies and stress. Then for the benefit of readers who may get any ideas from all this I offered to send on request, if you inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address, a copy of my new pale pink monograph on "Reserve Power." Finally, to preclude confusion of my Sir James' "reserve force" in the heart muscle with O'Doe Brady's "reserve power" which applies to the general system, I fell back on the old reliable scheme of passing the buck, citing authorities for the idea I am trying to convey. You know how little reverence I have for medical authorities as such—medical history has so often shown they were wrong, and anyway an authority is nothing more than a doctor who asserts his belief or theory or view with a solemn air of knowing, whereas if the man really knew or if the profession in general knew the thing to be so, there would be no need of "authorities."

So here are some authorities whose views coincide with the teaching I am trying to impart in reference to Mackenzie's reserve force in the heart and Brady's reserve power in the body.

In an article published June 16, 1934 (J. A. M. A.), Dr. David Riesman expressed the belief that many of the cardiac "breaks" (another term for exhaustion of reserve force or as physicians sometimes say "loss of compensation") seen in the poor patients entering the Philadelphia Hospital since the depression are in part due to food privation and can be corrected only by proper nutrition.

I venture to say that the same condition, which was as common in the days of our greatest prosperity as it is or has been at any other time, was in part due to faulty nutrition, not deprivation of food, but vitamin deficiency in the otherwise adequate diet, particularly deficiency of vitamin B-complex and vitamin D.

Drs. Reisman and Harold S. Davidson, in the same article, reporting their studies of beriberi, which is now receiving better recognition here in the United States, say "the first characteristic symptom seems to be weakness in the legs; later a moderate edema . . . palpitation on exertion and shortness of breath. The heart is usually enlarged, the cardiac "breaks" (that is, dilated). Beriberi is due to shortage of vitamin B. The condition of the heart in beriberi is practically the same as the condition commonly found in cases of "decompensation" in hospital wards and in private practice.

Victor Fleming Is Due More Credit

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 21.—D'ye want to know something about the man who made "Gone With the Wind"? No, I don't mean David Selznick. I mean Victor Fleming, about whom far too little has been heard in the hallelaloo and the bouquets accorded the biggest, costliest picture ever made. Victor Fleming was only the director, of course, but it has been my experience in Hollywood that the part of every picture spelling success or failure belongs to the man with the megaphone. All right, now I'll tell you about Fleming.

First of all, he is better looking than most of the stars he directs—and he has directed Gable, Taylor, Spencer Tracy et al. He is tall, broad-shouldered, tanned of face and prematurely white-haired (which somehow adds to his attraction). He also has more appeal to the fair sex than most of the screen's heartbreakers. (Yes, I like him, but Judy Garland fell for him just as hard.)

I still don't know why they call Fleming a "man's" director (as opposed to George Cukor, who is a "woman's" director). Maybe because Fleming prefers to do the masculine type of story—like "Captains Courageous" (to my mind the picture ever made) and "Test Pilot" (which wasn't bad either). And "The Yearling"—his next assignment.

"But I like directing women, too," he assures me and discounts the stories of quarrels with the temperamental Vivien Leigh in the "GWTW" opus.

Fleming was born in California (Pasadena) some 48 years ago (when I ask exactly how old he is, he retaliates by asking how old am I, so I quickly drop the subject.) He has directed pictures 20 years . . . He started in motion pictures as a cameraman (the dramatic values of the superb photography in "GWTW" can be credited to Fleming).

The late Douglas Fairbanks gave Fleming his first try at directing—for "The Clouds Roll By."

"In those days," says Victor, Fleming continued as a top director until the advent of the talkies. "Then," he tells me, "all the silent directors were thrown out on their ears and told they were through." (The list includes John Ford, King Vidor, Frank Borzage, Henry King.) Then came an influx of stage directors for the new talkie technique—only two of these sound experts remain—Cukor and John Cromwell.

Of the nine years that Fleming has toiled for Metro, the past five have been minus a written contract. But they finally wore him down, and a few months ago he put his name on the dotted line for a highly interesting salary—to say the least.

"But, I was paid just as much 15 years ago," he tells me. "As only directors were, you could save most of it then; now you give it to the government." Most of Fleming's savings are invested in real estate. He doesn't employ an agent or a business manager.

He has been married twice—the last time in 1933. There are two daughters, aged three-and-a-half and two-and-a-half. They have a five-acre estate in Bel-Air . . . Hobbies—flying and tennis . . . Ambition—"to be paid for doing nothing." Chief aversion of the moment—mention of "Gone With the Wind."

MY DAY Education Is Basis Of Our Democracy

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—Visitors come and go so quickly in the White House these days that I hardly have time to enjoy them, but it was a great pleasure to have Miss Fannie Hurst for a night. Last night, Mr. and Mrs. Howland Davis, of New York City, came down for the departmental reception. They were heads of various departments who have not already come with other groups for dinner, dined with us before the reception. In some cases we greeted the same people three times, once when they arrived for dinner, once when we met the cabinet before proceeding to the reception room previous to the reception itself, and once when they came through the line as heads of their departments. Each time we tried to look as though we had not parted five minutes before.

I attended, for an hour, a reception given at the Congressional Club yesterday afternoon, and it was pleasant to see many familiar faces. Before that, I spent two hours with some of the leading educators of the country, and I hope I learned much about the problems facing those who are trying to meet the situation of rapidly mounting numbers of young people in high school. Basically, our trouble is inadequate money to pay for properly trained teachers and to divide the young people as they should be divided for their best interests. There is a wide variety of capacity which necessitates a wider variety of occupations and opportunity as well as academic teaching.

We have always believed in this country that education was the basis of our democracy, and I still believe that is true. We have certainly not as yet faced the duty of the nation, in view of the entirely new problem which is before us today. Great numbers of young people who, in other times, would have gone to work, are now going to high school because there is no work.

For any work which they may later do, they must have better training than ever before. The nation, I think, should consider this as an investment, if we still feel that education of the proper kind, suited to the capacities of every individual, is part of the preparation necessary for adequate participation in a democratic form of government.

I have just been sent some information on the Pan-American Conference in aid of Spanish refugees, which is to take place in Mexico City, Mexico, February 7 to 10, with delegates from Chile, Cuba, the Argentine, nearly all the Latin-American countries and the United States. With 130,000 Spanish refugees still in France in need of assistance, it seems wise to help work out opportunities in those countries for establishing them in a pattern which will at least seem fairly familiar.

These Spanish people should have a contribution to make to the New World. It hardly seems fair to me that France should have to bear this added burden at the present time. Bishop Francis McConnell in his report to Secretary Ickes, who is honorary chairman of the Spanish refugee relief campaign in this country, reports a fair amount of success both in collecting cash and other materials and that they must be started in their new surroundings. It seems to me that those who are able to do so should be glad to help in this work.

Precede Strenuous Exercises With Simple, Easy Ones

By Ida Jean Kain.

It has been said that a woman's waist moves up and down with the fashion, but a man's—being more consistent—expands steadily in a horizontal line.

Most men are fairly nonchalant about this progressive expansion but the life insurance companies look upon it as an unmitigated hazard. Your chest should be at least five inches larger than your waistline. When the two are equal, you're in bad shape!

One authority says flatly that 50 pounds of excess cuts your life expectancy in half. He goes on to say that one excess inch of beltline further decreases your life expectancy to 45 per cent.

On the basis of those calculations a man of 50 who has let himself take on 50 pounds of excess avoirdupois with four inches too much beltline has tossed away about 15 years of his life! It is worth your while to keep the old beltline in check.

A "bay window," or, if you prefer, a "corporation front," is the penalty of excess fatty tissue and flabby muscles plus the work of gravity. As the muscles of the abdominal wall lose tone, gravity causes the abdominal organs to sag and protrude, and the muscles spread as they are distended.

The remedy is twofold: Bring your weight down to the vicinity of normal and exercise to tone the muscles of the abdominal wall. But don't start bending over to touch your hands to the floor! That's no use.

With a "corporation front," a flat on the back on the floor, knees flexed, and feet on the floor, in this position you exercise with a minimum of weight bearing. The various parts of the body are held in their relatively normal position and you exercise without strain.

Strenuous exercises should be preceded by simple, easy ones. Begin by putting the small of the back down to touch the floor. Do this rhythmically for 10 counts. Progress by twisting vigorously at the waist to touch the thighs to the floor, first on one side, then the other. Hold the knees together and try to keep the small of the back on floor.

A good third exercise would be from the same starting position—flat on the back on the floor, knees flexed, feet on floor. Slowly raise the hips off the floor until the body is in a straight line from knees to chest. Hold. Then slowly return to starting position and repeat. Six times will be enough for a starter, later increase to 12 times.

The foregoing exercises are simple and easy but astonishingly effective for toning flabby abdominal muscles. After you are in pretty good condition, try this one.

Flat on the back on the floor, legs stretched straight down, arms straight up on the floor overhead. Stretch, then swing the left foot up and the right hand down, touching them together. Swing back to starting position and repeat with right foot, left hand. Continue for eight counts. Very gradually increase the number until you are doing 20.

You can vary this set with exercises from the Ida Jean Kain leaflet, "Waistlines and Beltlines." Send a stamped return envelope to Miss Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for the leaflet.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Do children ever have cancer?

A. Yes. In 1936 there were 595 cancer deaths of children under 15 years of age.

Q. Please give a recipe for roasting canned veal.

A. Place the veal in an open pan in a hot oven. When it is browned, pour over it some freshly soured cream. Reduce the oven temperature and baste the meat with the liquid in the bottom of the pan.

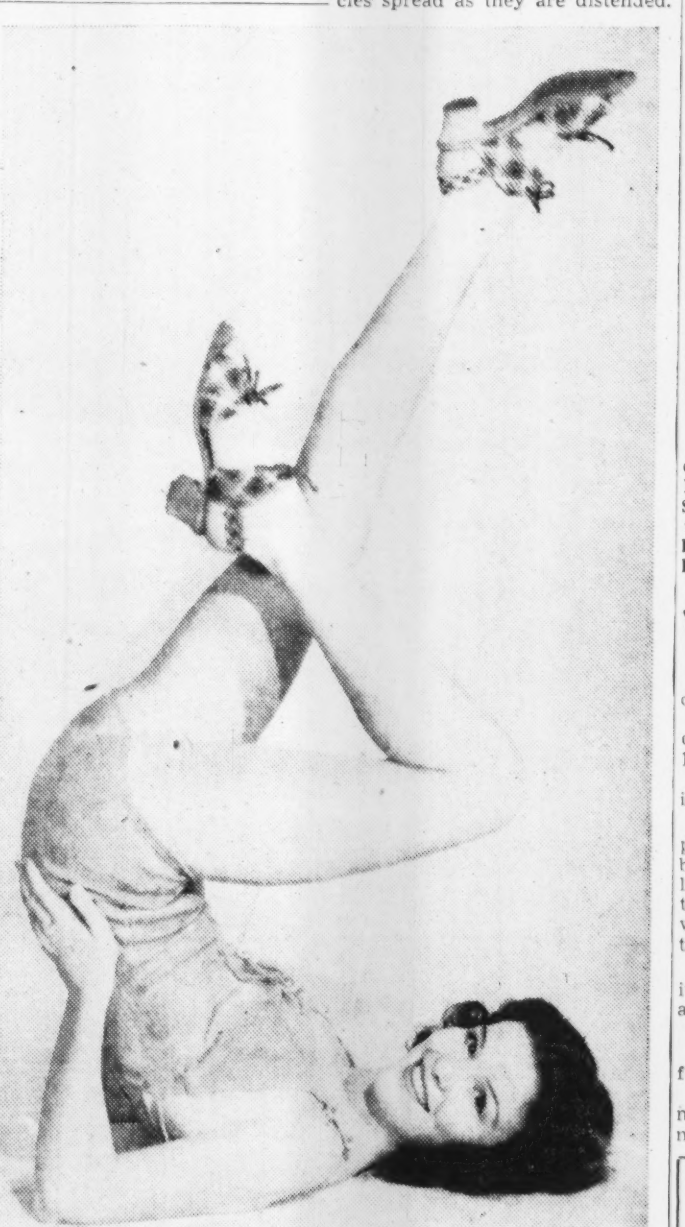

Q. Can any club of girls assign itself Greek letters and call itself a sorority, without restrictions?

A. Yes.

Q. Are there more males than females in the United States?

A. Census records show that males have always been more numerous.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution, Washington, D. C. for a reply. Three of the most interesting answers will be printed here daily. Don't telephone; write as directed.

The bicycle exercise tightens the tummy muscles, thighs and calves. Warner Brothers' Nanette Fabares shows how to do it. Bracing herself on her elbows and resting her legs in the air, she simulates the motions of pedaling a bicycle.

Easy To Paint Pictures On Glass

Delightfully quaint and "old world" is the picturesque "Fishing Village." And you can paint it easily on glass in all its artistic coloring—and in its actual size, 9 by 12 inches.

You work in simple steps—and by the same method you can paint other fascinating subjects, too, such as flowers, skyscrapers, ships at sea.

First step is to cover your design (which is printed on paper) with a piece of glass the same size. Then begin to paint, following the shaded parts of the design which of course you see easily through the glass.

You use inexpensive oil paints in three colors—red, blue, yellow. A chart shows how to mix these to get any color you need. For lighter tones add white household enamel, for darker tones, black household enamel. Light green, for instance, is made with blue and yellow paints, white enamel.

In painting the "Fishing Village," make the walls of the old houses gay with pale pink, pale yellow, light green. The roofs may be dark brick red or dark grey. Paint the women's costumes in vivid reds, blues and greens, make the cobble streets warm grey, the wharf dark brown and to the water give purple reflections.

When you've finished and paint is dry, slip reticulated paper under the glass. It shines through under painted parts, gives a gorgeous effect when you frame your picture, hang it in a place of honor.

You will also enjoy painting the other beautiful designs given in our set, "Six Pictures to Paint on Glass." These designs, each 9 by 12 inches, include the "Fishing Village," "Treasure Ships at Sea," "Skyscrapers," "Sunflowers and Zinnias," "Old Windmill," "Poplars by the River." Simple chart shows how to mix colors, directions tell what colors to use for each design.

Send 15 cents in coins for our set of SIX PICTURES TO PAINT ON GLASS to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name and address.

Slim Printed Ensemble

By Lillian Mae.

Most important forecast of spring style is the "costume look." Printed jacket-dresses will bloom everywhere. Stitches up Lillian Mae's Pattern 4377, say in soft, flower-sprayed crepe (white or yellow on grey is smart), and use the Sewing Instructor to hurry your needle. The dress itself is designed to soften and slenderize. See how the gored front skirt makes you seem taller and narrower. Darts above the waistline and at the shoulders hold in softness through the bodice. And the V-neck, with either revers and a bow or just lace edging, is very youthful. The boxy jacket is so becoming to your figure!

Pattern 4377 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36, entire ensemble takes 5 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

"How do you manage to have so many smart-looking clothes?" people will ask if you use our new brilliant Lillian Mae Pattern Book before planning your spring wardrobe. It's a complete fashion picture, with day and night glamor frocks, spring bridal wear, charm for 40-plus, town and country modes. There's a budget wardrobe, spring seasonings for the young set and carnival-gay cottons. All yours—for the easy sewing! Order a copy now! Book 15 cents.

Thrilling Experiences Highlight Atlantans' Visit to New England

By Sally Forth.

FROM Farmington, Conn., drifts the news that Josephine and George Adair, who left this city three weeks ago, are renewing many friendships while on their trip east. The popular couple is now visiting the Clark Smiths at their home in Farmington. The Smiths, you recall, are former residents of Atlanta and have many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. George first visited Mr. and Mrs. Al Wilkins at their home in Philadelphia, Mrs. Wilkins being the former Sarah Hurt, of Atlanta. They then journeyed to Presque Isle, Maine, where they were guests of those erstwhile Atlantans, Bob and Anne Lane Whitley.

An interesting tidbit concerning the Whitley home in Aroostook country is the fact that it is heated by a new stoker furnace—the only one of its kind in the country. Small wonder that the neighbors miles around call to see it in the current sub-zero weather. Sally hears that skiing was the favorite diversion of the Atlantans during their sojourn in Maine.

At a dinner party given in their honor, "Jo" and George met Larry Alline, multi-millionaire socialite, who offered them and their hosts the use of his camp at Squaw Pan Lake for several days.

Located 20 miles from Presque Isle, the camp was reached after tobogganing several miles across a frozen lake! Although the temperature ranged from 10 degrees above zero to 23 below, the Atlantans forgot the cold in their enjoyment of the magnificent scenic beauty surrounding their lodge. A highlight of the camping trip was the encounter with an angry moose, which they tracked over 3 miles of snow and ice! "Jo" and George will visit New York and Williamsburg, Va., before returning home at the end of this week.

A PROSPECTIVE bride is learning how to walk down the aisle! This unusual technique is being taught the attractive bride-elect along with a group of belles who are all members of a gym class at Agnes Scott. This novel idea of demonstrating the correct method of marching down the aisle, to the strains of "Lohengrin," originated with this gym teacher a few years ago when she attended a wedding and noticed the ungainly posture of the wedding attendants.

The clever instructor should be congratulated for conceiving a method to make wedding attendants walk more gracefully!

HERE is an aftermath of Atlanta's famous and never-to-be-forgotten GWTW week. The story really begins a year ago. The cooks of Mrs. Caldwell Holliday and Mrs. Joe Fisch are sisters, as are the two charming matrons. The activities of Frances Holliday and Josephine Fisch find the two maids comparing in conversation the latest achievements of their mistresses. It was always a source of much gratitude for the cooks score a so-called "beat" on their mistresses' latest activity.

The cook of Mrs. Holliday was bursting with pride when she called her sister at the Fisch home and announced with importance that "Miss Frances" had her picture in the Junior League program for GWTW. And that, she did not fail to state, was more than Miss Josephine could do. The latter's cook did not flinch, but informed her sister that her lady was planning to go to the ball and that was that.

Two weeks later, Josephine's cook rushed to the phone to call her sister. It was her time to brag. "Miss Josephine and Mr. Joe" had their picture in Life magazine at the ball. And that, according to the cook, was really getting somewhere, because as she added, "You can't beat Life anyway or anytime!" Since then, Sally hears, the feud between the two cooks has not been revived, for the two working sisters think their mistresses have broken even.

Garden Center Shows Variety of Plants To Meet Wednesday

Among recent "winter arrangements" at the Garden Center was one of the Rosemary Garden Club featuring pyracantha and glag-foliage arranged in a copper kettle. For the Grant Park division, Mrs. W. G. Goodman combined ligustrum foliage and dark berries in a green glazed jar.

In a dusty pink pottery jar, Mrs. W. C. Sutfenfeld, of the Rosemary Garden Club, arranged a combination of pussy willow, cotoneaster, and ligustrum, while Mrs. E. H. Pickett combined calliopsis and feathery cedar in a cornucopia for the Gladiolus Garden Club.

The Club Estates Garden Club was represented by Mrs. Gray Lambert, who selected a pewter pitcher to hold a spraying arrangement of nandina foliage and bright berries. Mrs. W. B. Ellington exhibited modernistic mantel arrangement for the Narcissus Garden Club, using a pair of green pottery urns to hold galax leaves and sedums at the rim with radiating spikes of sansevieria and pussy willow.

Mrs. W. G. Griffin, of the Lake Claire Garden Club, chose a light copper jar for a mixed grouping of berries and foliage while a small green vase of brilliant pyracantha was entered by Mrs. J. W. DuBose for the Bird and Flower Garden Club.

A simple restrained grouping of ivy sprays in an old glass compote was the entry of Mrs. Byron Harris for the Avondale Garden Club, while an earthen jar filled with magnolias, nandina and foliage was the contribution of Mrs. Carl Dood for the Habersham Garden Club.

A plum branch fastened in a rocky formation on a wooden back and placed against a yellow taffeta formed the line arrangement of Mrs. Forrest Smith, of the Dogwood Garden Club.

A white oval pottery container holding a graceful arrangement of nandina berries and narrow foliage was the entry of Mrs. V. P. Phillips for the Glenwood Garden Club.

An unglazed jar of neutral color was filled with berries and glossy foliage for the Inman Park Garden division by Mrs. J. H. Rousey.

The miniature model of the Founder's Memorial Garden will be on display at the Garden Center throughout the week. This "Living Garden" will commemorate the founding of the Ladies' Garden Club, in Athens, which was the first one organized in America. The garden clubs in the state are generously contributing toward this memorial and the members will have this opportunity to see the completed model.

Committee Chairmen Are Named For Hugh Findlay's Lecture Feb. 9

Mrs. Shepard Bryan has been appointed chairman for tickets, and Mrs. John S. Spalding and Mrs. Charles F. Rice have been named hostess chairmen for the lecture here on February 9 by Hugh Findlay, of New York, and sponsored by the Neighborhood Garden Club.

Mr. Findlay, noted horticulturist and landscape architect, will give one of his most outstanding lectures—"Bread and Roses"—in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club on February 9, at 2:30 o'clock. The lecture will be illustrated in color with pictures of specimen roses and of gardens designed by this distinguished speaker.

Plans were completed for the lecture at the recent meeting held with Mrs. Shepard Bryan on Peachtree road. Mrs. James N. Brawner, the president, presided and announced the complete plans and chairmen.

On the ticket committee serving with Mrs. Bryan, the chairman, are Mesdames W. L. Funkhouser and John A. Hinds, co-chairmen, and Hal Hentz, Pope Brock, Newton Craig, Wm. D. Ellis, Wilmer Moore, William W. Owens, John E. Sanford, Wm. E. Matthews and Warner Martin.

Co-chairmen with Mrs. Spalding and Mrs. Rice as hostesses will be Mesdames S. B. Turnan, John

M. McCullough, Henry Grady Sr., Mrs. A. D. Adair, chairman, and ushers, and arrangements are in charge of Mesdames W. E. Beresford, chairman, and Arnold Broyles and T. J. Hightower Jr., co-chairmen. Mrs. E. N. O'Brien is publicity chairman and the co-chairman is Mrs. Lee Bivings.

Ten members of the Northwood Garden Club, a group of young women sponsored by the Neighborhood Garden Club for membership in the Garden Club of Georgia, will serve as ushers. They are: Mesdames Ed Wright, Joseph Rainie, Jack Lawless, Alfred Thompson, James Threlkett, James Rankin, H. Cliff Sauls, George Sheffield, Frank Troutman and Tillman Morris.

Mrs. John E. Sanford reported on the gifts of bedjackets and stocking of candy distributed in the maternity ward at Grady Hospital for Christmas. The jackets were designed by Mrs. T. J. Hightower Jr. and made by the members of the club. Plans for the Garden Club for the new year were discussed and Mrs. John S. Spalding will make arrangement for the first month.

Donald Hastings spoke on "New Year's and New Perennials." After the meeting the hostess, assisted by her daughters, Mesdames C. H. Carter, Bonnell, Ansley and William Benedict, served tea.

Mrs. Clifford L. Near Is Hostess To Service Star Legion Chapters

The Atlanta and Fulton County Chapter of Service Star Legion, was entertained by Mrs. Clifford L. Near at the January meeting. The report was made of the Christmas work at Hospital 48, Mesdames Tom Wisdom, Harry H. Ellis and J. C. Mellichamp represented the chapter.

Mrs. Wisdom reported the joy of the men in Ward 3-A, the hospital ward of Service Star Legion, as toys, furnished by the Schumann-Heink Chapter, were distributed among the patients. Two hundred and ten pounds of pecans, sent by the Fort Valley chapter, and apples given by J. Frank Beck to the Atlanta chapter, were distributed through wards. Money for special relief, among the emergency visitors at the hospital, was furnished by the Atlanta chapters to Mrs. D. M. Robinson to be used at her discretion.

Mrs. Mellichamp said she had for sale the "Remembrance Maps" of the battle fields of the World War. These maps were made, with the approval of General John J. Pershing, chairman of the Battle Monuments Commission, by Mrs. Henry F. Baker, of Baltimore, representing Service Star Legion on the commission. Service Star Legion is the only woman's organization represented in the seven members of the commission.

She reported that E. K. Cargill, president and manager of the Macon, Georgia, radio station, WMAZ, is having a daily broadcast of the map, in an effort to get their value before the public. The battle monuments are facsimiles of those in France and other countries, and are accurate as to the scale of miles represented. The maps have elicited favorable comment from those attending the unveiling of the monuments in 1938. Proceeds from the sale of this map go to the educational loan fund for children of veterans, who are ambitious to obtain a college education.

The chapter was urged to compete for prizes offered by Mrs. Mildred Seydel, chairman of in-

Miss Zelma Chambers Weds Carwin Avant

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Jan. 21. The marriage of Miss Zelma Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Chambers, of Deepstep, to Carwin Avant, was solemnized recently at the home of the bride. Rev. Carey Vinzant performed the ceremony in the presence of friends and relatives of the young couple.

An arrangement of greenery and floor baskets of gladioli formed the background for the improvised altar. Preceding the ceremony Miss Elizabeth Chambers, sister of the bride, and Wade Avant, brother of the groom, lighted the candles. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Mary Posey, pianist.

Mr. Chambers gave his daughter in marriage and the groom had as best man his father, W. H. Avant.

The bride wore a costume suit of powder blue wool trimmed with silver fox. Navy accessories and a shoulder bouquet of valley lilies completed her costume.

After the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with an informal reception, after which the couple left for their wedding trip to Florida.

Mrs. C. C. Smith, of Milledgeville, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Ethel Connell Smith, to John M. S. Nolan, the ceremony was solemnized on September 15 in Jeffersonville.

Mrs. Bruner Heads Immaculate P.-T. A.

Mrs. A. G. Bruner was installed president at the recent Immaculate Conception P.-T. A. meeting. Other officers installed were: Secretary, Mrs. Frank Le G. Garriott, and treasurer, Mrs. Charles Malouf.

Rev. Father Joseph A. Smith talked on "St. Thomas' Vocational Home."

A rummage sale will be held January 27 at the Municipal market.

Plans were made for the annual card party to be held on the evening of February 2 at 8 o'clock in the Ansley rathskeller. Mrs. L. B. Bowen is chairman of the candy committee, and Mrs. William D. Zink, chairman of the gift committee.

international relations for the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, for the best workable plan to bring about better relations among the women of the different countries of the world.

Mrs. A. H. Strickland, past state president of Service Star Legion, told of her plans to bring to Georgia a creed and pledge to the Georgia flag, of which she is the author, printed and distributed in public schools of Atlanta on Georgia Day, February 12. It is an honor to have been the author of either one, but Mrs. Strickland has the honor of both having been accepted by the Georgia legislature. It was a woman, Miss Nina Hornaday, of Atlanta, who had the honor of having Georgia Day, February 12, passed by the legislature.

As officers of Atlanta chapter are elected for two years, the same group will hold office for 1940, except the Gold Star chairman. Mrs. Thomas H. Stewart, the Gold Star chairman of the chapter, was appointed national Gold Star chairman, and Mrs. L. B. Joel, a Gold Star mother, was voted to fill this vacancy. Lyons B. Joel Jr., her son, was wounded in the Argonne forest October 14, and died December 12, 1918, in Nantes, France.

The chapter welcomed Mrs. A. A. Pearson, who spent three months in California. Mrs. Pearson is an active member of Atlanta chapter, and is regional director for the south of the national.

Notice of the passing of Mrs. Emilie Brienven, the state president of Louisiana, was received with regret. Mrs. Brienven was a National Democratic Committee woman from Louisiana.

Mrs. Mellichamp told members of receiving notice from Mrs. Vincent Astor, the chairman, of her reappointment to the national advisory committee on women's participation in the New York World's Fair, 1940. Mrs. Mellichamp was one of 100 women appointed to represent Georgia in 1939.

Mrs. John MacDougald, Mrs. A. A. Pearson and Miss Byrd Bianchi, who will enter the chapter on February 13, the place to be announced later. A social half-hour was enjoyed by members, refreshments being served by Miss Jamie Near, daughter of the hostess.

School Secretaries Give Recent Tea

VATICAN RELATIONS TERMED 'INJURIOUS'

Dr. Weaver, Baptist Leader, Says President Showed Catholics 'Favors.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(P)—President Roosevelt's appointment of Myron C. Taylor as his personal representative to the Vatican was described by a Baptist leader today as the extension of "special favors to one ecclesiastical body to the injury of all other religious groups."

Dr. Rufus W. Weaver said in a radio address that while Baptist leaders who had discussed the appointment with President Roosevelt had come away with the understanding that it was a "temporary expedient," they nevertheless viewed "with concern the possibility of establishment of permanent diplomatic relations" with the Vatican.

Weaver is chairman of the executive committee of the associated committees of public relations for the southern, northern and colored Baptist conventions.

Baptists, he said, believe that complete separation of church and state should be made a part of the fundamental law of every civil government on this earth."

FIRE SIRENS WAIL AS 40 ALARMS RING

Smoke-Eaters Kept Busy Racing to Atlanta Homes, Business Places.

There wasn't much checker playing at Atlanta's many fire houses yesterday. The boys were too busy running to fires.

They answered 40 alarms during a 24-hour period which ended at 9 o'clock last night. Included in the calls were a church, 14 residence alarms, eight grass fires, one auto, two trash fires and an assortment of business calls such as those to a beauty shop, barber shop, a hotel, garage and restaurant. NORTHSIDE BURGLAR GONE, POLICE THINK

County Robberies Dwindle, But Minor Thefts Plague City During Week.

The phantom of the North Side, the burglar believed responsible for jewel thefts aggregating $50,000 during the past four weeks, has left town, Fulton county police reported yesterday.

Only one theft was reported to county officers over the week end, and that had nothing to do with jewels, headquarters announced.

Fulton police last night simply said the burglar had worked the town and left. They said they knew his identity, but his whereabouts still are a mystery.

The lone theft of the week end was at a lunchstand at the stockyards Saturday night, Lieutenant Cal Cates of county police said. The loss was said to be negligible.

This was in marked contrast with the records of the preceding month, which showed a series of burglaries climaxed by the theft of $12,000 in jewelry from the home of Bolling Jones Jr., 1145 West Pace's Ferry road, which came to light Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Atlanta city police were being plagued with a series of minor burglaries, both in residences and in stores. During the period from Wednesday until midnight Saturday, 19 burglaries were reported, the aggregate loss being estimated at $865. In five instances no loss was reported.

Articles stolen ranged from 1,000 packages of assorted cigars, valued at $175 and stolen from the Harris Cigarette Service Company, 77 Ivy street, N. E., to 4 1-2 dozen golf balls taken from the Chandler golf course. It included clothing, radios and automobile tires.

Also listed on police reports was the loss of $821 worth of coats, pocketbooks and evening wraps which were missed by a party attending a dance Friday night at the city auditorium. The articles were taken when dancers were forced to pick at random from the contents of three clothes racks which had been knocked to the floor.

Bus Takes Students to G. M. A. From Atlanta

Showing the bus that picks up students in Atlanta and arrives at Georgia Military Academy at 8:45 a. m., enabling students to get in a full program of work and return home by 5 p. m.

Georgia Military Academy Attracting Day Students

Georgia Military Academy begins the second semester February 1 with a larger enrollment than recorded at the close of the school for Christmas holidays in December. Approximately 375 boys have been enrolled during the year representing over half the states and several foreign countries.

In order that this program of work may conform to the schedule of the homes on the north side of Atlanta and make it possible for boys who live in that part of the city to receive their training without upsetting the home program, a bus schedule has been inaugurated. The bus picks up the day students in Atlanta and arrives at the school at 8:45 a. m. This program makes it possible for the day students to get in a full program of work and return home by 5 p. m.

G. M. A. is essentially a college preparatory school, sending to college about 90 per cent of its graduates. The school has a faculty of 25 teachers which means the classes are small and students receive individual instruction and are taught "How to Study." Due to the fact that many students who have normal minds fail in school work because they are poor readers, G. M. A. is conducting experiments in reading endeavoring to improve the reading of students and thereby improve their comprehension. The ophthalmograph and metronoscope are used in the reading clinic.

G. M. A. has a separate Junior department for boys between eight and 13 years of age.

The school offers special preparation for West Point and Annapolis. In a recent competitive examination to determine the winners of the appointments awarded by Congressman Ramspeck to Annapolis, G. M. A. students won first and second places.

The school also offers a full program of athletic activities under excellent coaches. For information, phone Calhoun 1197.

TIRE ENGINEERS IS NEW FIRM OF BROOKS & PRUITT

New Recapping Place Opens on Ivy Street

Home of the latest exclusive recapping service to Atlanta motorists, where tires are recapped on easy terms.

RECAPPING TIRES ON EASY PAYMENTS AT 141 IVY STREET

Harry Brooks and Paul Pruitt Now Known as Tire Engineers.

Harry H. Brooks and Paul L. Pruitt, realizing the need in the city of Atlanta for an exclusive recapping shop where Atlanta motorists would be able to have their tires recapped on liberal, easy payment plan, have established at 141 Ivy Street, N. E., corner Ellis Street, one of the south's most up-to-date and most modern recapping plants.

This equipment is not new to Atlanta, having been used by the former Brooks & Zuker Tire Company, located in West End. This equipment was moved to the center of Atlanta for the convenience of the thousands of satisfied customers of the former company and to active additional space, owing to the growth of the business. Mr. Brooks and Mr. Pruitt having had experience of a number of years in both new tires and recapping, have elected to call their new firm Tire Engineers. These two men are the best qualified of tire experts to give you information on any tire question that might arise, and they ask their many friends to come by their new location at Ivy and Ellis streets to inspect their most up-to-date method of renewing treads on tires.

Mr. Pruitt, secretary and treasurer of the company, announces that they will feature recapping on the higher priced tires, having safety tread designs that will replace any of the premium tires now sold in the American market. Tire Engineers have developed a saw-tooth tread that will replace, equal or better the stopping qualities of any new tire now being built.

Mr. Pruitt points out the fact that many motorists invest a great deal of money into a set of automobile tires, and under today's operating conditions of high speeds, the tread is soon worn off, leaving the motorist with a smooth tire that is still good for thousands of miles, but unsafe to drive.

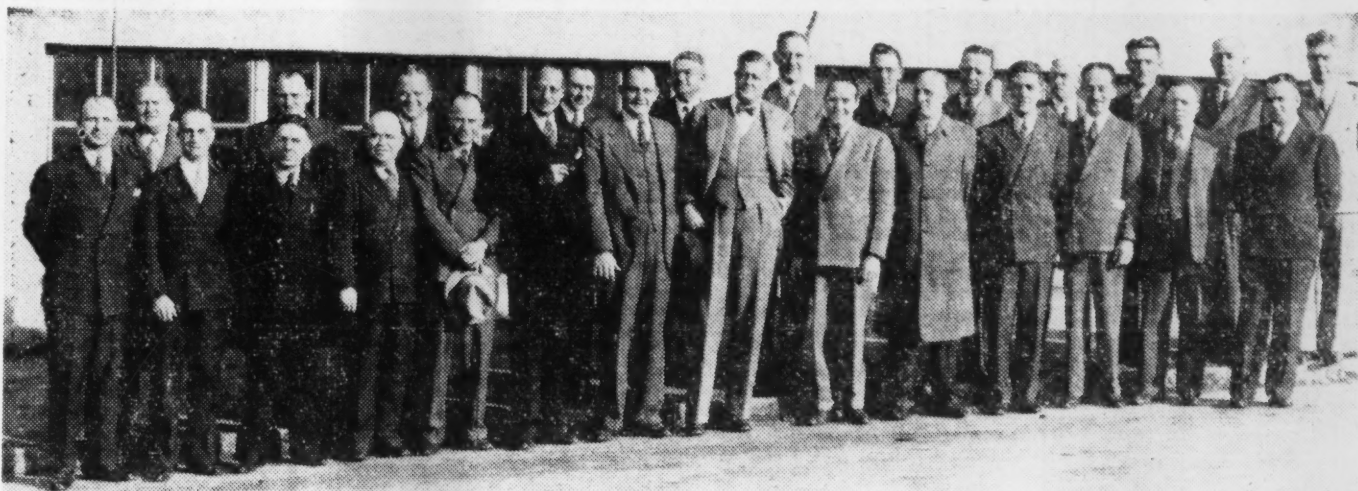

Tire Engineers have searched the market and have assembled in their shop at Ivy and Ellis streets every known piece of equipment to keep a tire in perfect balance and to renew a tread by factory methods.

In this modern and up-to-date shop one-day service can be given to the motorist. The motorist does not have to be without the use of his automobile while this work is being done.

Special attention will be given to commercial accounts, and this concern has assembled the most widely diversified tread designs of any shop in the south. By using the highest grade materials, this company is able to guarantee new tire mileage or better on any tread they renew in their modern shop.

This modern shop is open for inspection at all hours. It will well pay any motorist to visit and see this modern shop before having any work done.

LIVE SALES FORCE KEEP CHRYSLER AND PLYMOUTH ON MAP

New and Handsome 1940 Models Now on Display at Harry Sommers, Inc.

With a large and experienced force of salesmen on their toes and constantly presenting the merits of the Chrysler and Plymouth line of 1940 models, the new year has started off with a bang at the big automobile house of Harry Sommers, Inc., at the corner of Spring and Hunnicutt streets, according to the announcement of H. W. Robinson, vice president and general sales manager.

Mr. Sommers has been distributor here for the Chrysler and Plymouth lines since 1924, and has built up an enviable reputation, not only on the merits of the cars he handles, but for courteous and fair dealing with the auto-buying public.

His sales force, shown herewith, is made up of approximately 30 high-class and well-trained salesmen—some on new cars, some on used cars—and through their wide activities are placing the house of Sommers in the forefront of automobile houses in the south.

"We are delighted at the way the new year has opened up for us," said Sales Manager Robinson, "and we see no reason why 1940 should not be a banner year for us."

The concern is showing a complete line of 1940 models of Chryslers and Plymouths at their new location, and, of course, the convenience of charge accounts is extended over a liberal budget plan. This new company, in business only since January 1, is enjoying a tremendous consumer business in their new location at 141 Ivy street, corner Ellis.

big display rooms, and scores of visitors and prospective customers who have taken a peep at the new lines have noted the beauty and the many attributes—forms, lines, proportion, symmetry—that make the 1940 models stand out conspicuously.

"The beautiful Chrysler for 1940 is created for those who believe that beauty in a motor car can be attained without resorting to extremes of modernism, that so often result in something garish and grotesque," said Mr. Robinson.

Chrysler Fluid Drive. However, there are a number of exceptional features which the salesmen can logically stress as the finer and better points in their line of cars.

There is the Chrysler fluid drive. It is the most far-reaching improvement in motor car power transmission since chains and sprockets were discarded in favor of the bevel gear.

The visitor will be struck by the simplicity of this model and of the principles that it demonstrates. For the Chrysler Fluid Drive is simple—in construction and operation. That is one of its principal virtues. Because its parts are few and of substantial construction it is not susceptible to mechanical troubles.

The chief advantage of fluid drive is that it enables one to drive the car under all ordinary conditions, without using the clutch or gearshift lever. Complete control of the car is obtained through the foot accelerator and brake pedal, except when maximum acceleration is desired from a standing start—when climbing an exceptionally steep grade, or when pulling the car out of a ditch or deep chuck-hole.

Superfinishing Parts. Another feature is the superfinishing found in the line of 1940 Chryslers. This new process, known as superfinishing, is now in use on most moving parts of the Chrysler engine and some chassis parts.

Superfinishing may be defined as an extremely fine surface finish produced upon flat, round, concave, convex and other types of surfaces, either external or internal. It is achieved by a combination of short motions, light abrasive pressure, slow abrasive cutting speeds, hard abrasive stones and a lubricant of proper viscosity to eliminate the scratches and surface defects created by previous mechanical operations, without causing new scratches and surface defects in the superfinished surface. Superfinishing makes for greater gas and oil economy, due to the reduction of friction and maintenance of compression in the engine.

Comfort Features.

There is, too, an abundance of practical and effective comfort features in the beautiful Chrysler for 1940. Redistribution of weight again has brought about marked improvements in riding quality. The longer wheelbase makes it possible for rear seat passengers to ride well forward of the rear axle. This principle, combined with coil springs in front, and long, flexible, tapered leaf rear springs imparts riding ease that is a revelation to all who experience it.

A big advantage to Chrysler owners is that more than 4,000 Chrysler dealers throughout the United States and Canada are prepared to render expert service to Chrysler owners. Wherever you see an approved Chrysler service sign you also will find an adequate stock of genuine Chrysler parts, special inspection and tool equipment, and a disposition to serve you promptly, courteously and efficiently.

QUICK DELIVERY BY HARLAND CO.

Businessmen of Atlanta and Southeast Offered Splendid Service.

Services ranging from the quick delivery of a supply of gem clips to the production of a complete direct-by-mail campaign including the vital necessities of market analysis and all the rest are offered to businessmen of Atlanta and the southeast by the John H. Harland Company, now in its 17th year of operation.

Each of its services, officials of the company pointed out, is under the supervision of an expert. While the company itself is active in many fields the men responsible for quality and prompt service are specialists in their particular line.

Simple printed matter as well as minutely accurate bookkeeping forms are turned out each day in the Harland Company's printing department located at 249 Jackson street. In the lithographing division the industry's most modern machinery handled by talented craftsmen produces impressive letterheads, checks and color work that has received national attention. The plant is under the su-

BREMAN COMPANY READY FOR MANY ORDERS OF STEEL

Official Expecting More Private Building Than Government Financed Work.

The Breman Steel Company, located at 329 Decatur street, N. E., foresees a greater building era pervasion of John A. Butler, vice president.

At the John H. Harland Company's retail store at 8 Pryor street, S. W., managed by Arthur Hubert Jr., may be found products of the General Pencil Company, Brown-Morse Company, E. S. Webster and others that have assisted in keeping America's wheels of commerce spinning for many years. "Semi-Hex," "Star Brand," and "Kimberly" are among the names that have become familiar by-words with the business buying public because of their unfailing habit of furnishing more than value received. All this merchandise, and more, is available at the Harland Company for immediate delivery by courteous, white delivery boys who await your call to Walnut 5738.

during the coming year among individual and private builders than even among government financed construction. The company is developing its business along these lines, and has made preparations for increasing its production.

Particularly has the concern rearranged its fabricating shop, so that a greater volume of its work can be handled in a more economical way, thus passing on a saving to the individual builder.

"We are looking for a good building season" beginning this spring," said M. W. Breman. "There seems to be a bigger percentage of individual and private building as compared to government financed building that has been prevalent during the last couple of years. This would tend to indicate that conditions are getting back to a more normal basis, and is the type of investment that reflects better and more sound stability."

"We have a complete stock of steel, pipe and fittings and we invite our customers and friends to visit our plant. We are carrying a saw-tooth tread that will replace, equal or better the stopping qualities of any new tire now being built."

Mr. Pruitt points out the fact that many motorists invest a great deal of money into a set of automobile tires, and under today's operating conditions of high speeds, the tread is soon worn off, leaving the motorist with a smooth tire that is still good for thousands of miles, but unsafe to drive.

Tire Engineers have searched the market and have assembled in their shop at Ivy and Ellis streets every known piece of equipment to keep a tire in perfect balance and to renew a tread by factory methods.

In this modern and up-to-date shop one-day service can be given to the motorist. The motorist does not have to be without the use of his automobile while this work is being done.

Special attention will be given to commercial accounts, and this concern has assembled the most widely diversified tread designs of any shop in the south. By using the highest grade materials, this company is able to guarantee new tire mileage or better on any tread they renew in their modern shop.

This modern shop is open for inspection at all hours. It will well pay any motorist to visit and see this modern shop before having any work done.

GIRL AT THE FRONT

Martin Picks Up Claire and Bill
They Are Followed By Enemy Planes

By BOB EDEN.

SYNOPSIS. Claire Dutton, private secretary to William Cameron, American diplomatic official, rushes from the French liner St. Croix at La Havre as the gang-plank is being lowered. Cameron has been delayed in Paris and Claire knows she can't return home without him. Back in Paris, she discovers she has an extra bag, a duplicate of her overnight bag. At the American embassy, Welles Sanford summons Pierre Boriet of the Surete Generale who finds in the extra bag a highly inflammable chemical capable of destroying the St. Croix. Boriet searches Cameron's hotel rooms. Claire finds a slip of paper on which Bill had written her first name three times—and he had never called her anything but Miss Dutton. Missing happily, she goes to her room, to find her overnight bag is gone. As she goes to meet her husband, a newspaperman, a stranger enters her taxi, tells her Cameron is alive and gives her his contact from the stolen bag. In it is a card reading "Z. Y." Danny introduces her to Maria Herceles who takes them to Captain Rene Martin and the Rolands to her flat. Noel Yoke, who comes to the Rolands, tells her Bill is dead but "Z. Y." says he has kidnapped by Nazis because he knows the plans for an Allied offensive. She agrees to fly to Berlin and through Frau Weber instructed Bill to divulge the plans but misstate the zero hour. Her pilot is Rene Martin. She receives a note from Bill but George Roland tells Frau Weber Bill is to be "purged" that night. At the time Bill is expected at the Weber flat, Roland calls again. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXIII. Nevertheless, he went with her outside, and followed her arm as she pointed out the plane, now much lower, and sweeping in a wide circle. As they watched it, it disappeared from sight over the tops of the trees and Cameron uttered an expression of disgust. Whether it was exasperation at having been awakened prematurely, or disappointment Claire didn't know, but as he turned away, she continued to search the darkening sky with her eyes.

Suddenly she shouted. "There it is, Bill! There it is!" She pointed to the plane, now approaching from the east, and losing altitude so rapidly that it seemed to fairly skim the tops of the trees as it swept over the clearing. She waved frantically, and then the plane again vanished over the trees, but a minute later it came back, dropping down with the suddenness of a bird shot on the wing. Claire and Cameron were racing across the field toward it as it skipped and bumped along the ground and finally came to a stop in a cloud of dust.

By the time they were 20 yards away, the ship had turned, heading in the opposite direction. Now the motor was idling.

Before they reached it, they saw the dark figure of a man climb over the edge of the cockpit, toss something back into the plane, and then run across the field in direction they had come.

They were panting when they came to the side of the plane, and in the dimness they could scarcely recognize the flyer who was grinning down at them, his goggles pushed up onto his helmet.

"Rene!" Claire screamed. "You're come!"

"Get in—hurry!" he commanded. "We haven't a minute to lose!" Rene Martin, again in his Nazi flying uniform, tossed down two parachutes to Claire and Bill, and while they helped each other adjust the straps, snatched the opportunity for a cigarette.

Soon the girl was climbing into the rear cockpit, Cameron helping her, and then he crawled up and took the second seat beside her. During this time Rene was keeping up a running fire of conversation.

"Afraid I wasn't going to make it this time," he said. "A plane picked me up shortly after I passed the line—I crossed in broad daylight, but I wanted to get here before dark if I could. Too risky trying to land among all these trees without some light."

"You mean you were followed?" Cameron exclaimed.

"Yes. Another Messerschmidt ship like this one I have. Apparently, he'd been hanging around waiting for me—there must be a leak somewhere in Paris. I had a time getting away from him, and he almost clipped me before I did lose him. A tracer bullet whizzed past my ear so closely I could almost feel it. I finally lost him over the mountains."

"Hope he's not still hanging around," Claire said nervously as she adjusted her safety belt.

"All right, folks, here we go!" Rene cried, and speeded up his motor for the take-off. "That fellow may still be around somewhere. Anyway, I'm going very high. Better chance to dodge in the clouds."

There was a breath-taking moment as the ship skimmed over the ground and it appeared that they surely wouldn't clear the tops of the trees surrounding the clearing, but at the last second Rene pulled back sharply on the stick and the plane soared upward with room to spare.

It was cold and Claire huddled down in the cockpit, protecting her face as much as possible from the rush of air as Rene climbed higher and higher. Then for some time the movement of the ship was gentle, even. She couldn't hear Rene and Bill talking because she had no earphones but she knew they were talking.

Suddenly Rene put the ship, which had been cruising along at about 8,000 feet, into a sharp climb.

"Nazis!" he exclaimed. "Not one this time—a dozen. My pal went out and got his friends!"

"They're after us!" Cameron asked.

"Yes. Be sure your safety belts are secure. I may have to do some acrobatics. If we have to bail out, I'll give the signal!" Cameron couldn't see that anything could be gained by shouting the information Rene had just given him into the ear of the girl at his side, but she sensed something was wrong when he reached over and examined the fastenings of her safety belt.

"Anything wrong?" she screamed.

He shook his head, but she knew he wasn't telling the truth. His face beneath his helmet and goggles was too grim. Nervously she clasped the bag containing the remnants of the food Frau Weber had given them and to which she had clung as she climbed into the plane.

"What is it, an enemy plane?" she shrieked, her lips almost touching Bill Cameron's ear.

"Yes!" he shouted back. "But don't be afraid!"

His hand reached for hers and grasped it firmly. His palm was warm against the back of her cold hand, and a pleasant feeling of comfort went through her.

She looked up at him and smiled, and her lips formed the words: "I love you, Bill." He smiled back at her, suddenly leaned forward and kissed her lips.

Meanwhile, the plane was streaking toward France at better than 200 miles an hour. How Rene had spotted the enemy planes neither Cameron nor Claire could imagine. It was completely dark now, and the stars were like a spangled ceiling above them. High in the air—they were more than 12,000 feet—it was as clear as crystal, and getting steadily colder.

Claire huddled down in her seat hugging herself with her arms, trying to keep any warmth there was left in her body.

Cameron heard Rene's voice suddenly through the phone, and there was a note of elation as he told him he had outdistanced the fleet that had tried to intercept him.

"We're not out of the woods, yet, though," he added. "They'll probably have another gang waiting for us along the line. All we can do is trust to luck."

Rene dropped the plane down to about 8,000 feet and leveled off. It was too cold at the higher altitude. Ice had begun to form on the tips of his wings, and he dared take no chances on slowing his speed.

For an hour they raced along without incident, Bill and Claire rejoicing at every mile they put behind them, for each mile brought them that much closer to safety.

It was more comfortable at the lower altitude, but Claire still shivered.

"We're 225 miles toward Paris," Rene called into his mouthpiece, and Cameron smiled as he answered, "Good work, Rene!"

For 10 minutes more they shot through the air, and then Rene suddenly started into a steep climb.

"Just as I expected," he shouted. "They're after us again!" "How do you know?" Cameron shouted back.

"Can't you hear them?" Rene called.

Cameron strained his ears, removing his earphones, but he could hear nothing. He decided that Martin must be possessed of a sixth sense, which he had read somewhere every good flier must have.

Even Claire was aware of the danger, however, a few minutes later. Rene had climbed higher and higher until her ears ached, and then she heard a faint rat-a-tat-tat.

"Machine guns!" she screamed at Cameron, and he leaned toward her and nodded.

"If we have to go overboard, remember the count-10 business!" he shouted. "Be sure to clear the ship before you pull your chute cord."

Claire nodded that she understood. Both of them could hear the onrush of machine gun bullets now. Although they couldn't see the Nazi planes, they knew they were there. Tracer bullets streaked like comets through the air, bracketing their plane.

Rene put his ship into a dive. Cameron could tell this by the singing of the wing against the struts. Suddenly Bill, who was leaning forward against the front of the passenger cockpit, started to unbuckle his safety belt.

"Rene's hit!" she shouted at Claire. "I'm climbing over and taking control. When I signal, go over the side. Good luck and God bless you!"

Claire reached out her numb hands to hold him back, but he already was out of reach. She tumbled with her safety belt and finally got the snaps open.

The plane had been diving out of control, but quickly now it righted itself. Leaning forward, Claire saw by the dim light from the instrument board that Bill had taken the stick.

Instinctively he ducked as a burst of machine gun bullets swept the ship. He was tugging at Rene and had him half out of his seat while his feet braced the stick on an even keel.

Claire saw that he had the wounded Frenchman in his arms, and then he signalled her. It was unmistakable, his gesture. His thumb went up and then over the side, and she knew the plane must have been struck in a vital spot.

Taking a deep breath, the girl climbed onto the seat and poised for a moment on the edge of the plane. Breathing a prayer, she let go and automatically began to count as she hurtled down, down.

She had counted 20 before she realized why she was counting, and then she tugged at the ring of the parachute which was on her breast.

CONSTITUTION WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

Your Own Horoscope for Jan. 22nd

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—An excellent day for recreation, company of the opposite sex, entertaining and anything that you enjoy very much. However, before noon, avoid going to extremes in any respect.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—An excellent period for tackling any problem with new ideas. Between 10:30 a. m. and 7:10 p. m., you may feel too prosperous and exuberant to undertake new financial obligations, or for dealings with legal affairs. It would be well to curb this tendency. After 7:10 p. m., favors plans that require time and effort.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The day favors travel, commerce, labor and communications. Be especially careful concerning discussions, especially with relatives and in-laws.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—An excellent day for general business activity, correspondence and industry. Do not expect too much in dealings with women or in social affairs.

July 23rd and Aug. 22nd (LEO)—Today is an excellent period for availing yourself of all opportunities for expansion. The day favors agreements and conferences, dealings with influential people.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day is an excellent period for getting down to hard work or tackling hard jobs before 12:30 p. m., and if you have been hesitating about interviewing someone who is considered hard-boiled, see what you can do about it today.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA)—An excellent period to get down to hard work or tackling hard jobs before 12:30 p. m., and if you have been hesitating about interviewing someone who is considered hard-boiled, see what you can do about it today.

Oct. 23rd and Nov. 21st (SCORPIO)—Between 12:30 p. m. and 10:24 p. m., does not appear to be a favorable time for seeking favors, or extraneous and miscalculations. An excellent day to stick to old, established routine.

Nov. 22nd and Dec. 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The entire day favors a progressive spirit in mechanical and industrial work, finances, education and legal matters, but suggests caution in works around liquids, chemicals and drugs. After 7:30 p. m., your emotions and feelings should be thoroughly controlled. Be careful of health during evening hours.

Dec. 22nd and Jan. 19th (CAPRICORN)—An excellent day to keep an eye on money affairs, for the tendency appears to be towards extravagance and miscalculations. An excellent day to stick to old-established routine.

Jan. 20th and Feb. 18th (AQUARIUS)—Before 10:30 a. m., avoid hasty or impulsive action. Use caution around occupational hazards.

Feb. 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Excellent day to promote changes. Put aggressive action behind matters dealing with land, and if you have some long-standing matter that are unfinished, try to complete them now.

Pagliacci the Prodigal

OINK! This little piggy went to walk with Actress Georgia Southern in New York—and got lost. He's a pet, Pagliacci by name. Cops found him, and now this little piggy stays home.

EXPENSIVE They're worth their weight in something or other—the ships in this hangar at New York's LaGuardia Field. To buy just what you see in the picture you'd have to plunk down three million bucks. One of the world's swankiest, the new Manhattan plane roost always has a king's ransom in cloud cruisers nesting in its hangars. (Acme photo.)

HAPPY WALDORFER Mr. and Mrs. Al (I'll take a walk) Smith do a sedate shag to the tune of "Sidewalks of New York" at a private party in their honor at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Time Out for the Stork

$100,000 BABY You can switch off the spotlight now, boys, while the famed dance team, Yolanda and Veloz, goes into a sort of retirement. You see, the missus is knitting "Tiny Garments"—although in photo it seems to be a sweater for hubby. The heir, expected in July, will cost the pair $100,000 in cancelled engagements, they figure, but somehow it's worth it.

RE-UP He's finished his first 3-year hitch as mascot of the army signal corps at Fort Omaha, Neb., and now Snuffy's re-enlisting with Recruiting Sergeant Bill Bullard. (Acme.)

NICE GOING Throw another log on the fire and get a load of Lucille Walker's dancing class, doing their stuff out on the desert near Phoenix, Ariz. Very nice work if you can get it, this sort of business. Idea seems to be that the gals can pitch in and master their routines more quickly when far from the madding throng, where naught but a giant cactus is on hand to witness the terpsichore. (Acme.)

BR-R-RR! Chilly gent squatting on the Chicago radiator is one Al Hostak, Seattle middleweight champ, who's warming up for his forthcoming tussle with Indiana's Tony Zale in the ring.
